LLL's 'death ray' work is top secret

Top secret weapons research currently underway at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory may be linked to the Pentagon's version of a "death ray."

LLL spokesman Jeff Garberson confirmed Friday that some scientists at the Lab are doing "basic research in the general area of charged particle acceleration and behavior."

He said that one electron beam research project for this year is being done under contract with the Navy at the cost of $4 million.

Garberson emphasized however that Lawrence Livermore Laboratory is "not developing high energy lasers."

His comments came in response to an article appearing in an Ohio newspaper last month which described such "charged-particle beam weapons" as having the potential to "fire lightning-bolt-like streams of subatomic bullets (electrons and protons) at the speed of light."

According to the Pentagon correspondent who wrote the article, some LLL scientists are "urging" the Defense Department to spend 10 times the amount that the United States normally spends on charged particle beam weapons, a figure which would come to $100 million annually.

Garberson denied that LLL is pushing the Department of Defense to invest that much money for the project.

He did say though that there are facilities at LLL equipped to conduct research in the area of charged particle beams. "We're talking about large rooms of equipment for physics research and three or four facilities on site called cyclotrons or linear accelerators," Garberson said.

Richard Briggs, who is the leader of an electron beam project at the Lab, said these high energy accelerators were being used as a "tool" of physics research but that he was "not at liberty to go into any details or applications."

Briggs indicated that one use of electron beams was to take X ray pictures of explosions.

Some nuclear scientists believe these "death rays" could be fired at incoming missiles which would burn up before penetrating the earth's atmosphere.

One retired Air Force officer, Maj. Gen. George J. Keegan, is convinced that the Soviet Union has nearly perfected a model charged particle beam weapon. The Defense Department contends that both Russia and the United States are 10 to 20 years away from producing such a weapon.

U.C, Berkeley physicist Charles Schwartz told The Times that LLL wouldn't be concerned with researching a death ray aimed at ground personnel. A more military oriented use of such a ray he said would be development of a "high intensity laser beam to induc small scale nuclear reactions."

Attorneys seek breakup of area court logjams

The saloon used to house a post office, library and stage coach stop — but now it's a typical country bar.

He may run the team, But in here she's boss

It sits there on a corner, white and very old and very comfortable, and there's a sign hanging on the door. "Village Saloon," it says.

It may just be a saloon to visitors — but to Virginia Madden, it's the start of a new career.

Virginia, a former local school teacher, also happens to be the wife of Oakland Raiders head coach John Madden.

But he makes it clear that "she runs it — it's her money and her business."

So, around the 1860 historical site where guys have been coming in for a beer since horse and buggy days, Virginia Madden is the owner, proprietor — and the boss.

Related story, pg. 5

From the back of the long bar, she pours a cup of coffee and offers one to the visitor. "This place appealed to me because it was old," she says. "It's not the kind of place that you'd say, 'Oh, boy, I want to go in there.' But it kind of grows on you after awhile."

Boss, the Madden family's pudgy bulldog, comes up to sniff new folks on his territory, then prowls near the football and pool tables.

Virginia sips her coffee and explains that "I'm into antiques," that she's always kept an interest in the past, in the "historical value" of places like hers. "Maybe that's because I was born and raised in a house that was built in 1856," she says. "Maybe it's getting back to my roots."

The whole idea of giving up an 18-year teaching career and owning a saloon began in a "kind of funny way," she says with a smile. It was after a stop at the local 76 gas station, when she asked the attendant off-hand about the old bar she'd passed for years on the corner. Was it ever for sale? A few inquiries brought good news. "John came in and said, 'I think if you really want it, you can get it.' " She really wanted it, and shortly afterwards the Village Saloon was part of a new corporation called Virginia Inc. "I hadn't even set foot in it," she smiles.

It's important, she says, to try to "keep things that are old, rather than tear them down." As she talks, the saloon door swings open; bright light from outside drenches the interior for a moment as her husband John comes in.

Virginia did, of course, have some doubts about giving up her teaching career locally and starting something new. A few days before she was to take over on Jan. 1, 1978, "I thought, 'Oh, do I really want to do this?' " But a change was necessary, she says. "Teaching is not what it used to be," mainly because "discipline" was lacking more and more from the students, Virginia contends. "My class was great," she says with emphasis. But even "when I would go outside for yard duty," the discipline problems became "unpleasant."

So, she took up a business where she still works with people, with few of those hassels, she says. "My customers are super people."

Many of them are "blue collar workers, construction workers, guys from the (Camp Parks) training camp," Virginia adds. "There's more kindness here, and more respect. They're really considerate."

Since hard liquor isn't sold at the saloon — only beer, wine and a speciality called "Louisiana hot links" — Virginia doesn't anticipate any problems with customers.

Just in case, husband John sometimes comes around, though right now he says he's "just having a cup of coffee on my way to work." He's lent a helping hand during emergencies, though, says Virginia. Like when she got sick the very first week. "He was here Super Bowl Sunday," Virginia grins.

In fact though the bar didn't start out to be a family affair, "it's turning into it," she says. The Maddens' two sons,Mike and Joe, "get up at 6:30 a.m. and come down to help out with the cleaning chores," she says. "Then we go home at 7:45 to have breakfast, and I bring them to school." The boys, who are 12 and 14 "understand what's going on" with the business, Virginia says. "They pull their own weight, and they feel their job is important," she adds. "They're good kids."

There are still some things to be ironed out, of course.

But, obvious she's enjoying it. Husband John Madden, out in front with a coffee, says that he didn't have any doubts about the venture. "I think it's great. Everybody should have something they really want to do."

Virginia Madden, preparing for the day ahead in her old-fashioned historic site, doesn't look ruffled. "It's really a very relaxing place," she says.

Schools discover windfall

LIVERMORE — The Livermore school district may get its cake and eat it too — lower taxes but more school dollars — through a discovery by district business manager Bruce Jamieson.

At a special trustees meeting Saturday morning Jamieson explained his find, a provision of last year's school finance bill AB-65, that increases state support for "low wealth" districts.

Known as GYP, the guaranteed yield program, districts like the Livermore Valley Unified School District are assured financial support for their overall revenue limit (the maximum budget approved by the voters).

With an assessed valuation below 84 per cent of the state, Jamieson said Livermore qualifies for GYP supports while districts with high wealth are prevented from lowering tax rates. Through AB-65 their excess revenue is dispersed statewide.

As a result, Livermore could receive GYP supports near $744,000 for 1978-79. That could also mean almost 40 cents off the general property tax rate, currently $4.57 per $100 assessed valuation.

Ironically, advantages to the district could be greater and taxes could still drop below this year's level if voters authorized a tax increase for 1978-79, Jamieson said, and this was the reason for the sudden Saturday morning session.

District taxes (totalling $5.90) are a combination of general purpose taxes ($4.57) and seven special funds including adult education (11 cents) and building lease—purchases (38 cents).

An increase in the general fund would be matched by more state funds but could be offset by lower special taxes with the net effect a lower overall bill and more money for educational programs.

However, Jamieson and Supt. Leo Croce noted a decision by the trustees to hold a revenue increase election would have to be made by January 27 to be authorized by Alameda County. More discussion of the matter is scheduled for Tuesday night's board meeting.

Downtown loitering

Joint group to tackle issue

PLEASANTON — Though a few merchants expressed doubt, the Downtown Business Association Friday nonetheless opted to try solving the issue of loitering teens through a joint committee made up of Amador High School student government leaders, association members, and representatives from the police department.

Association members, however, are still keeping alive the idea of seeking a closed campus in case the committee can't come up with an effective solution.

"Without question it should be the school's responsibility during school hours," said president Joyce Getty, opening the meeting with a prepared statement written by the board.

Declaring that merchants' hassles with young people littering and blocking doorways have been around for years, she predicted that unless action is taken downtown "could become run-down, empty buildings and we don't think anyone would like to see that happen."

Police Chief Walt McCloud noted that every city in the state faces the same problem. Often those dragging and walking Main Street are graduates coming back to visit with friends still in school.

A contingent from Amador, accompanied by vice-principal Roger Dabney, spoke in favor of keeping the campus open. with student body president Chris Scott saying the youth causing problems are a "select few" out of Amador's total population.

But association members indicated the time to deal with the situation is now, harsh restrictions or not.

McCloud worried about warm spring weather leading to more intensified disputes between merchants, students and police.

Developer Brad Hirst, who is planning a small retail center on Santa Rita Road near Amador, also urged action to be taken soon.

"I think there are businesses thinking of locating in Pleasanton near the school and more businesses could cause the problem to expand greatly," he said, intimating businesses might shy away from locat-

VMH occupancy drops but '77 income climbs

LIVERMORE — Valley Memorial Hospital reported a slight drop in the percentage of beds occupied in 1977 compared to the previous year but boasted an increase in revenue for the same period.

The hospital issued its annual report last week and announced that candidates for three vacancies on the board of directors consisted entirely of incumbents.

The non-profit hospital, which recently received a maximum two-year accreditation, .F lon-tcrm e celebrated its 16th birthday last year.

Total admissions in 1977 reached 6,866, 337 more than the previous year. Total patient days declined by 373 to 29,506.

The average length of stay was reduced from 4.9 days to 4.3 days. Occupancy dropped slightly, from 71 percent in 1976 to 70.1 percent last year.

Occupancy in the medical/surgery wards stayed at the same 80.5 percent as recorded in 1976, but the number of medical/surgery patients jumped from 3,507 to 4,072. The number of surgeries performed increased from 2,970 to 3,307 in 1977.

Pediatrics patients increased in number from 725 to 807. The number of births at Valley Memorial went from 693 in 1976 to 769 in 1977.

The number of outpatient services performed increased from 52,437 to $10.5 million for schools

SRV trustees see big bond vote

DANVILLE— The San Ramon Valley Unified School District board will consider options for a prospective $10.5 million bond election to build schools on the Twin Creeks and Tibros sites at their regular meeting Monday night.

Trustees convene at 7:30 p.m., following an executive session 30 minutes earlier, at district offices, 699 Old Orchard Dr.

The proposed school housing bond election report proposes two possible dates; this June and March of 1979.

The June date appears the lesser of the choices as the Jarvis Tax Limitation Initiative is expected to have a significant impact. The report comments, "Those persons who have some knowledge of bonds indicate that if the Jarvis Initiative were to pass it would not be possible to sell bonds as the assessed valuation would be reduced greatly thereby, reducing the tax base to pay for the bonds."

Four options are presented in the report. The first, calling for permanent schools on the Tibros (1,100 capacity) and Twin Creeks (650 capacity) sites, would call for a $10.5 million bond issue tied to a tax rate of 27.5 cents.

Option 2 , tied to a $9.4 million package, includes a combination permanent - portables school on the Tibros and Twin Creeks sites, with the same total capacities as in Option 1.

The third and fourth options are tied to a March, 1979, election. Both are the same, one calling for totally permanent facilities, and the other a combination of permanent and portables. However, because of the inflationary factor, the packages would be $11.3 million and $11.1 million, respectively.

Option 3 would call for the highest tax rate— 28.5 cents.

Also listed in the report are the district's "short range capital needs and funding," totaling $1.7 million. This includes $600,000 for a continuation high school, $432,000 for portables so that Montevideo's enrollment could be increased to 650, and $295,000 to increase the present Twin Creeks School to 650 enrollment (via portables).

Trustees will also take action on a request from the Acalanes High School District to join with them to intervene in a suit filed by the proponents of Walnut Creek Unification against the state Board of Education.

Walnut Creek has been turned back in two previous efforts to annex portions of several neighboring school districts, including the Alamo portion of the San Ramon district.

Bud Lowrey will present a year-round schools report that includes community and staff survey figures, some financial data, and two prospective calendars.

Four schools are being considered for the year-round schools pilot project — Walt Disney, Montevideo, Twin Creeks, and Green Valley.

The board will also act on a designated smoking area evaluation, approve a list of textbooks, act on summer school dates, and a negotiated agreement with classified employees of Chapter 65.

Queries grow in police chief case

LIVERMORE — There are questions that need to be answered in the Lindgren resignation, some of the candidates running for city council feel. Several had responses to the issue, mainly voicing doubts about the way the resignation was handled.

There must be a reason for the resignation and the expenditure of public funds to investigate him, declared Marlin Ebert. "The basic issue isn't Lindgren, he's already gone," Ebert said, " Parness and Tirsell should be on the block for the cover-up. I'm strongly opposed to anything that smacks of cover-up."

Gurnam Sidhu said he was "disappointed." He added, "I hope it is a personal difference and not anything else."

But he said, "I wish they would not tell anything that is a lie. If there are some problems and they're respecting his privacy, they should just say the situation is delicate and they can't give any information. I don't see why they have to hire a private investigator if it is an internal problem as they say."

Jerome Wilverding had no comment on the subject, and David Woods and John Staley were out of town.

"I would hope they attempt to have some fact-finding committee to discuss whatever the problems were," said Terrence Fox. "I'm not altogether sure that's all of it, but whatever it is I would like to see it discussed with the department, officers, staff, policemen on the street."

Bob Weissel concluded, "I felt it was a very very messy way of handling the situation. But we don't know why he's leaving. What the heck is mismanagement? The thing leaves way too many questions to be resolved and it's got to have a very bad effect on the city, staff and people we hire."

Incumbent Dale Turner said, "I hope that the district attorney's investigation will dispel some of the allegations going around, allegations without foundation as far as I know."

Mayor Helen Tirsell felt the council members probably have a different view of the situation. "We felt a responsibility to the community was our first responsibility. Since we were dealing with largely unsubstantiated evidence we just had to make a decision, 'Was he fit to be chief,' and from Bill's (Parness) report we had to say, 'No.'"

Did she think the situation was handled properly in announcing the resignation? "When you're dealing with unsubstantiated allegations, that's the way to handle it," she responded firmly. "There are other agencies to deal with circumstantial evidence and that's where it is now, in the district attorney's office."

53,891. Increases in this category included emergency room visits (18,706, up 1,489); X-ray visits (15,158, up 851); and outpatient surgery (257, up 32).

Outpatient laboratory visits and physical therapy visits both declined in number.

All categories of services at the hospital's Family Medical Center in San Ramon increased, with the total number of visits rising from 24,053 in 1976 to 30,391 last year.

Medical and dental staff members at Valley Memorial increased by one to 89 as the number of employees rose by 34 to 442.

Volunteers declined in number from 452 to 390, but the amount of hours contributed by volunteers jumped from 45,587 to 53,300.

Financially, the hospital reported gross patient revenue of $9.8 million, up from $8.4 million a year earlier. Expenses increased from $7.4 million to $8.6 million in 1977.

Revenue exceeded expenses by $523,349 last year, compared to $445,813 in 1976. Long-term debt at the hospital was reduced more than $200,000 to $549,347.

Additionally, the hospital expanded the intensive and coronary care units in both capacity and equipment; installed an advanced X-ray scanner that diagnoses tumors and other abnormalities; and the Amador-Livermore Regional Occupational Program constructed a classroom behind the hospital for a nurses aide program.

Three members of the board of directors come up for re-election Feb. 16. They are incumbents Arthur Hudgins, Ted Fairfield and Tom Schweser. No other persons were nominated.

Guilty plea made in Chabot rape case

HAYWARD — John R. Shook, 24, pleaded guilty yesterday in Superior Court to felony charges of kidnapping and raping an 18-year-old Chabot College coed last October in Livermore.

Shook was also found to have been in violation of his probation on a previous armed robbery conviction and was returned to Santa Rita jail where he has been since his arrest.

Shook is scheduled to return to Department 37 Feb. 16 for a probation report and sentencing.

LIVERMORE — James H. Einfeldt, 23, of Livermore was placed on probation Thursday by Municipal Court Judge Mark Eaton after he pleaded guilty to lesser charges of illegal possession of a concealed weapon and possession of over an ounce of marijuana. He had been charged with a felony count, attempting to bring a firearm on to the grounds of Santa Rita jail last Oct. 14.

ing near the school fearing problems with students.

Hirst suggested various school clubs take one day each month to come downtown and help clean up litter.

The student representatives quickly pointed out those belonging to formal clubs aren't the ones littering. But Getty replied, "Amador students don't hesitate to come downtown to ask for donations (for projects and events). To kind of wipe the slate clean, it might be a good idea if you'd come down and help us."

The students claimed they don't have any influence over other youth in different cliques — to which police Lt. David Freeman agreed, comparing the difference in student groups to "the Indian caste system."

After countless comments and a few suggestions were bantered about, all concluded to try working in a committee.

Association representatives plan to meet with the student executive council shortly after semester finals are over.

Speak up on county lines

OAKLAND — Here's your chance to sit down and be counted.

Alameda County is doing a survey of callers using the toll-free tie lines from the outlying districts in the county.

Persons calling 846-3277, the north county tie-line, and 846-4457, the south county public works building tie-line, are being asked by operators the name of the town from which they are calling.

No prizes awarded, but the county will use the data gathered over the next month or two in order to ber determine how heavily the tie-lines are used.

If use is heavy enough, the county may consolidate things so that Valley residents dial only one number to reach all county offices, said Peter Bologna, the county's manager of telecommunication systems.

Sewer comments due

OAKLAND — Interested parties have until Friday to comment on Alameda County's notice of a negative declaration on its proposed policy on package sewage treatment plants.

The policy is designed to govern all community plants which are not connected to public systems.

For more information, call 846-4457, ext. 6401. To see a copy of the proposed policy, visit the county public works building, Room 136, 399 Elmhurst, Hayward.

Zone request denied

OAKLAND — Requests by George Hansen for a four acre rezoning on San Ramon Road near Dublin Iceland and a neighboring 18 acre rezoning were both rejected by Alameda County supervisors last week.

The switch would have been from residential to various combining districts resulting in office and commercial uses. Local residents opposed the rezonings feeling they would not be a good buffer use near their homes.

Supervisors said the rezonings would be inconsistent with the land use designated in the general plan.

On another item, supervisors granted the appeal of Bart Spina for a sewer permit on Castledown Road in Castlewood. He had been turned down by staff, which was concerned that the private Castlewood sewage treatment plant already is operating over its capacity.

Supervisor Valerie Raymond said that Spina, who lives in San Jose, was unaware of the situation and Castlewood neglected to notify him of the existing ban on new connections to its plant.

Funds for commissioners

OAKLAND — Members of four Alameda County commissions were voted per diem allowances not to exceed more than $700 annually for each individual commission last week.

The funds should be enough to cover some expenses incurred by the members. Supervisors also reiterated approval of a $700 fund for the Children's Interest Commission.

New commissions receiving the per diem allowance are those on art, consumer affairs status of women and human relations.

In another action, supervisors refused to raise the $50 per meeting allowance which each member of the county retirement board can claim.

Retirement board members wanted $100 per meeting for not more than three meetings each month. Supervisor Fred Cooper was willing to go to $75 per meeting, but no one would second his motion.

Practices for retirement board pay in other counties sampled by County Administrator Loren Enoch range from $25 per meeting in Fresno to $60 per meeting (not more than two meetings per month) in Contra Costa County and $50 per month San (not more than three meetings per month) in Orange and San Mateo counties.

Ski trips planned

PLEASANTON — The drought is over, and, for some people, that means skiing is back.

The recreation department is offering four ski trips this winter, ranging from $21 to $60 in cost for adults and from $18 to $60 for those under 12 years.

A one-day trip is planned Saturday, Jan. 28, to Squaw Valley. On Feb. 25, another day only outing goes to Boreal Ridge. And skiers can go to Alpine Meadows March 11.

But for addicted skiers, a three-day trip is planned for Feb. 10, 11, and 12. to Heavenly Valley. The $60 cost includes three nights in a south shore motel and transportation. For more information regarding age requirements and times, call 846-3202, ext. 215.

Livermore needs more than theories

LIVERMORE — Terrence Fox is a businessman who likes the common sense approach to a situation. He sees the need for such a role in city government.

"Theories are great, but they don't always work in reality," says the candidate for one of three city council seats. "Everything looks great on paper."

He sees mutual cooperation of various communities in the Valley as a top priority. "I don't believe ourselves, Pleasanton, publin, any of us can really solve all of our problems unless we really get together and solve the problems that affect us all as a whole, he asserts.

Council candidate

He cited open space, water quality and air standard as main concerns that will be prominent for at least the next 20 years. "But let's not let those overshadow the other needs of the citizens," he added. "We have a large amount of senior citizens here that we can't forget."

Fox cited the example of having only one Dial-A-Ride at the present time, and how some senior citizens have to call three days in advance for a ride. "I don't think that's sufficient for their needs," he said. "I know there is a bus system coming and that will help, but that's not coming until June."

The president of Pacific West Financial generally takes an optimistic view of city government and problems. "I think of myself as an optimistic person trying to go forward with prudent answers," he said.

On subsidized housing, Fox takes a firmer stance. "I would support it for senior citizens and low income people, but I also know of instances where, when I worked for a bank, people that lived in the various housing tracts were making more money than I was, but preferred living there because they only had to pay $75 a month," he explained.

"I would support it, but I would like it to be a little more stringent," he said.

He talked of trade-offs, balancing the pros with the cons, in both downtown business and the pipeline. He said basically he thought the proposed mall in downtown area is a good plan. "I would support it, but I would like to see a strong campaign to actually go out and promote growth in that malland commercial development of it," he said.

He would favor bringing in good medium sized department stores, perhaps giving them a tax incentive to offset the fact that the land probably will have to be leased instead of bought. Southern Pacific, which owns much of the commercial land to be developed downtown, prefers to develop the land and lease it rather than sell it.

"It's a trade-off, you have to weigh what you'd lose with what you'd gain, and I think you'd gain more than you'd lose in that particular instance ," he explained. "I think that's the crux of the pipeline matter, too. You could put it up for another study, hire another consultant. But it would push it back a year minimum, probably two years. With inflation if it costs $28 million now it's going to cost $35 million in two years. Right now we have government money earmarked for it, two years from now we may be totally on our own.

"We will have lost two years on a situation we know we will have to face sooner or later," he emphasized.

Terrance Fox

What about a tax incentive for existing businesses? "I think I would extend some of the incentives to merchants who are trying to modernize their facilities or increase their present scope of things," he responded. "I would like to see our downtown street revitalized."

He also said he would support the Merchants' Parking Lot with its proposed expansion to Second Street. "I think we have a choice again of what's economically advantageous for the majority , again it's a trade-off," he said.

COVA signs its death notice soon

DUBLIN — The Congress of Valley Agencies (COVA) will consider adopting a resolution to disband since COVA members determined the Valley's best interests are no longer served by their agency.

The resolution will be considered for adoption Jan. 26, 8 p.m. in the Dublin San Ramon Services District (DSRSD) general office, 7051 Dublin Blvd., Dublin, according to an agenda prepared by COVA Chairperson Lila Euler.

COVA was formed in 1974 to provide a mechanism for Livermore-Amador Valley officials to communicate on mutual problems. They also discussed policy decisions on Valley matters.

COVA's membership is comprised of the cities of Livermore and Pleasanton plus DSRSD and the Alameda County Flood Control and Water Conservation District (Zone 7).

Disbandment will be subject to ratification by the governing bodies of the respective members.

A second resolution to disburse funds is also on next week's COVA agenda. COVA members contributed to the fund, Euler, stated.

The resolution states, "...that the balance on hand in the treasury of the Congress of Valley Agencies on date of June 30, 1977, shall be disbursed to the COVA members active during1976-77, based on their contributions to COVA for 1976-77. That the balance of the funds in the treasury shall be disbursed to the members active (those which contributed) during 1977-78, based on their contributions to COVA for 1977-78."

The balance as of Dec. 6, 1977 was $6,966.99.

Ideas on court reform

OAKLAND — Alameda County supervisors had a couple of suggestions for court reform this week.

They voted 4-1 to back the notion of asking the state to reduce the number of preemptory challenges in trials from 13 to 12.

A preemptory challenge is the "free" challenge which an attorney may use, no questions asked, in a prospective juror from being installed on a jury.

The defense and the prosecution each are allowed 13 preemptory challenges.

Supervisor Joseph Bort thought the number should be cut to " seven or eight", but a recommendation for a reduction of one was thought more practical to seek in Sacramento.

Supervisor John George voted against the motion. While he recognized the need to speed up the trial procedure, he thought that the jury is the most crucial factor in a trial and that jury selection & panal is the wrong place to streamline the whole process.

The supervisors also asked their legislative advocate, Charles Cruttenden, to work for a bill which would reimburse counties for the extra expenses they incur when a municipal court judge sits in on a vacant superior court bench.

In one instance last year, a judge from the municipal Oakland-Piedmont bench cost an additional $4,660 when on the superior court bench.

Supervisor Joseph Bort said the policy is a new one, instiututed by Chief Justice Rose Bird, and he does not like it. It would be better to go back to the old practice of calling judges out of retirement to take such cases, said Bort.

Mori's two ag-board bills

Assemblyman Floyd Mori (D-Pleasanton), chairman of the Joint Committee to Oversee the Agricultural Labor Relations Board, has introduced two legislative measures which would affect operations of the ALRB.

Assembly Concurrent Resolution 90 would reduce the cost of transcripts to growers and unions involved in ALRB hearings by permitting the ALRB to share in the cost of preparation of those transcripts.

"Presently, unions and employers wishing to receive a copy of the transcript must pay for their own copy plus the copy used by the board in reviewing the case," Mori stated in a news release. "This procedure places an unfair burden on growers, unions and farm workers who wish to utilize the ALRB's mechanisms for resolving labor relations disputes."

The second measure is designed to improve operations at the ALRB's regional offices. It would specify that the general counsel of the board, who acts as the agency's chief prosecutor, be the sole accounting authority for all regional staff personnel.

The general counsel is already responsible for the day-to-day supervision of these offices which are locatd in Sacramento, Salinas, Fresno and San Diego. The regional directors of these offices would also be appointed by the general counsel; however, their appointment would be subject to approval by the five-menmber board.

Mori said the current law is ambiguous as to whether the general counsel of the board itself is responsible for appointing regional staff. "This ambiguity," Mori said, "has hampered the ability of the general counsel to effectively manage the regional offices.

"We anticipate that by holding the general counsel responsible for the effective administration of the regional offices, and by giving him clear authority to manage them, growers, unions and farm workers will be better served.

"In addition, this bill will clarify both the responsibility and the accountability for the smooth management for the regional offices," Mori said.

Livermore council view bike path plan

LIVERMORE — City council members will be looking at details in the completion of relocated First Street Monday night at its 8 p.m. meeting.

They will be asked to consider street lighting design and landscaping plan as well as no parking along that street. City staff is recommending no parking zone be established on both sides of First Street between Maple Street at a point 300 feet east of Scott Street to accommodate the proposed bicycle lanes.

The bicycle plan, adopted by the city council in 1974, calls for on-street bicycle lanes along the realigned street. No parking is being favored to prevent further costs of widening the street, according to a letter to the city council from Public Works Director Dan Lee.

The proposed street lighting would use an economical type fixture with a more efficient high pressure sodium vapor light that gives a moderate level of illumination. Lee, in his letter to the council, said the more high-cost ornamental fixture was not being proposed because the area is on the fringe of the business district.

Landscaping plans go to the council from the Beautification Committee which recommended that the landscaping and hard-surfaced areas be designed for minimum maintence. Plants will be ones that have grown well in this area. They recommended that landscaping be included as part of the initial project to be financed by ERDA funds for economical and aesthetic reasons.

SR students graduate

Bronia Lewandowski and Kayris Chew of San Ramon were among those in the third graduating class of hospital pharmacy technicians at Chabot College.

Each of the graduates received a certificate of achievement.

In addition to a rigorous one year academic program, each student volunteers 450 hours in two or more hospital pharmacies in order to become familiar with a wide variety of procedures.

Working under the supervision of licensed pharmacists, the hospital pharmacy technicians perform various tasks involved with the preparation and distribution of medications.

Chabot College is the only Northern California community college to offer a hospital pharmacy technician program.

Year-round decision closer

SAN RAMON — A report by the San Ramon Valley Unified School District's year-round schools pilot project coordinator Monday night is expected to be the penultimate step to making a decision on whether the program is implemented this July.

A survey sent out to parents in the Walt Disney, Twin Creeks, Montevideo, and Green Valley School areas was to be compiled and included in the report that trustees will review Monday. Parents of school-age children have been asked if they approve of a year-round school for their area.

Also to be included in the report are a budget comparison (year-round schools versus on-going traditional schools), revised projected enrollment figures for the school areas in question, and two calendar proposals.

Information pamphlets on year-round schools were sent out to certificated and classified employees at the four schools and parents. The latter informational mailings also included ballots that were to have been returned Wednesday.

Bud Lowrey, principal at Twin Creeks School and the program coordinator for the district, said he felt community acceptance of yearround schools was the paramount factor to consider.

Cost-model data is not expected to be complete for another month, until final compilations are received from Stanford Research Institute. Financial data that Lowrey will include in his report will cover the costs of staffing, textbooks and audio-visual materials, and indirect costs of school maintenance, health services, bussing and substitutes.

The two calendars will reflect schedules with and without a spring vacation.

Lowrey said the report will be presented to trustees this weekend sans recommendations, so they can determine for themselves the precise direction they want to take.

Late last fall a district year-round schools committee had recommended, and the school board subsequently approved, a recommendation to place year-round school programs (on a pilot project basis) at the following schools: Montevideo, Walt Disney, Twin Creeks and Green Valley.

Since then, district leaders have expressed second thoughts on starting-up a program by July 1.

Lowrey has worked with James Solberg, assistant superintendent for administration and evaluation, on the tentative pilot project.

While the board will review the report at Monday's meeting, set for district offices at 699 Old Orchard Dr. in Danville, there is a likelyhood they will defer a final decision to next month.

Grant for SR school

DANVILLE — Words speak louder and more effectivly than formal, paper applications for Del Amigo High School — about $3,000 louder.

The continuation school for the San Ramon Valley Unified School District sent a team of representatives to a San Francisco screening forum a couple of weeks ago to make a plea for School Improvement Program grant money.

In comparison with the traditional paperwork jungle for applications for state money, this program requires applicants to make oral presentations.

A school district trustee,Del Amigo teacher and vice principal and a student madethe sales pitch — which the district just learned this week worked like a charm.

Del Amigo is one of 46 schools in California to recieve the money to plan ways to improve its academic standards and performance by its students.

According to Dr. Jim Smith, district assistant superintendent, the $3,000 will be funneled to Del Amigo immediately for use during the 1978 calendar year.

He said the grant award is a good sign that another application for about $65 per average daily attendance of about 130 at Del Amigo for the next school year, also will come Del Amigo's way.

That money would be used to implement the program improvemnt plans that th $3,000 grant will help prepare.

"It would be exceptional if we didn't get it," said Smith of the other grant.

Assembly bill 65 — the Green bill — calls for secondary schools to adopt proficiency standards in reading, writing and math by next June.

Standards in th same subjects are to be adopted by elementary grades four through six by June 1979, according to the bill.

It also requires schools to involve parents and high school students in conferencecommittees to review students' progress toward the standards.

Approximatly $13.5 million will be available to help California schools prepareprogram changes in 1977-78 with anothr $33.3 million in the following year and another $55.4 million in 1979-80.

Smith said Del Amigo had an edge in th grant competition bcause it has been working for some timeto develop proficiency standards.

Parents on hand, violence drops

MIAMI (AP) — Violence and crime have nosedived in five high schools now that kids know parents are watching in a program designed to make schools safer by using parents as counselors, school officials say.

"From 1975 through 1977, our school had the highest number of violent acts in the county," says Matthew Lawrence, assistant principal at Miami Central Senior High. "This year, the figures have been reduced drastically." The parent-counselor program, three months old, was conceived by Sam Moncur, director of the local Opportunity Industrialization Center, a jobs training program.

Moncur came up with the "Safe Schools" program in response to protests from parents over the beating of a high school girl last year at Miami Beach Senior High.

"Those people were talking about putting attack dogs in the schools and on the school buses," he says. "I had to do something."

"I am convinced that a lot of the disruptive behavior in the schools goes on because the kids think the parents don't know about it," says Moncur.

"Once a youngster told me he gets the mail at his house before anyone else does. If a letter from the school comes he destroys it before his parents get home."

The federally funded effort pays 22 parents $3.75 an hour to be counselors in five trouble spots. They ride school buses, check on students who are repeatedly late, counsel students, visit homes, arrange for parents to go to school for conferences and pick them up if necessary.

"We don't hire the parents to be security monitors," says Carol Young, coordinator of the program. "We want them to be able to create a kind of Big Brother-Big Sister relationship between themselves and the students." Despite the program's newness, school officials say it has had a "profound effect" on the teen-agers.

Lawrence of Central Senior High says that in the 1975-76 school year, the high school had 70 robberies and larcenies, 27 thefts of school property, seven assaults on school staff members, 46 assaults on students and 52 burglaries. He said there has been a sharp drop in those incidents — and resulting suspensions of students — this school year.

"Our suspensions for those kinds of acts are not one-third of what they were. I'm sure the fact that kids see their parents out here on a day-to-day basis has a lot to do with it," Lawrence said.

Officials say the program also provides meaningful jobs for the unemployed. To be eligible as a parent-counselor, a person must have been out of work at least three months.

ATLANTA (AP) — Former federal Budget Director Bert Lance paid off a $3.4 million debt to a Chicago bank the same day he sold $2.4 million worth of National Bank of Georgia stock to a Saudi Arabian businessman, according to a published report.

The Atlanta Constitution said in today's editions that court records filed in Fulton County Superior Court last week showed Lance's payment to the National Bank of Chicago came on Jan. 4 and freed a mortgage on his home in Atlanta.

He also paid off a $443,750 loan to the United American Bank of Knoxville,

Colors can bring you into harmony

That new blouse or shirt you just bought. Did you buy it because the colors blend with your natural coloring to create a feeling of perfect harmony? Or did you buy it because it was on sale and you kind of like the color blue?

Just because you favor certain colors doesn't mean those are the colors you ought to have on your back, according to Kathleen Edwards and Annette Lillard.

Edwards and Lillard are specialists in personal color analysis. During a two and one half hour session provide the individual with swatches of colored fabric to use as a shopping guide.

With the shopping guide in hand "you learn to be more selective. You zero in on certain things," said Edwards. When you look on a rack or gaze at bolts of fabric, you will know what will look good on you and can elimate everything else, they said.

Having an entire wardrobe in harmonious colors and fabrics means one garment will go well with any other in your closet, said Edwards, adding that because you can mix and match, you need fewer clothes.

> 'You can learn to control how people respond to you from what you are wearing' which costs $50, they say they provide the customer with "a selection of colors that are most flattering" to the colors appearing naturally in his or her skin and eyes.

Hair, skin and eyes are made up of a number of colors, all which combine in a harmonious package, according to the specialists. It is impossible for a person's naturally occuring colors not to be compatible, they added.

The process for determining the most flattering color combinations is not a subjective judgement. Natural colors are matched using a Munsell Color Identification system, said Lillard. Brown eyes are not just brown, they can vary and occur anywhere along the spectrum of brown shades from very dark brown to shades of orange, she explained.

Once the process is complete, the color specialists

Aside from the aesthetic rewards, color analysis shows how different colors on you create different moods. That leads to all sorts of possibilities, they said.

Through personal color analysis, a person "can learn to organize colors to know what mood you are projecting," said Lillard. Although wearing bright red may make you feel great, if it is not flattering, it may project another mood altogether, she said.

"You can learn how to control how people respond to you from what you are wearing," claimed Lillard. "Many men enjoy knowing they can control opinions" by what they are wearing. She said if they want to project a low profile, there are certain colors on them which will do the trick. And if they want to be the center of attention, there are colors which will make them seem energetic and on top of things.

Both women said that you should not wear colors which do not flatter you, even if you like them. If there is a particular color a person just doesn't want to do without, but it is not in his color scheme, Edwards suggested using it in decorating.

If personal color analysis sounds like it might be too limiting, Lillard said to the contrary, "It gives much more freedom and a wider palette than most people are used to." Edwards added that it would "take a long time to buy something in every one of your colors."

Edwards said many people stick to neutrals but knowing what colors are flattering can make "a very interesting wardrobe — open a new world of brightness."

Women with grey hair often feel they have to stick to pastels, but the color specialists said this is not at all the case. The colors a person can wear at 19, are the same colors she can wear for the rest of her life. Natural colors may change in brightness over the years, but according to Edwards and Lillard, the skin, eye and hair colors you are born with, are the colors you will have all your life.

This is why at $50 for a personal color analysis, the two women said it can be one of the best buys a person could make in regard to clothing. The one analysis is all that will ever have to be done, they said.

Edwards and Lillard work out of their Orinda office, but they will be speaking at a consumer clinic sponsored by Ye Royal Exchange Consignment Shop, 160 South K St., Livermore Thursday, Jan. 26 at 8 p.m. The lecture is free and open to the public.

In 1915, the Village Saloon was the home of Dublin's first Library and a general store. But it has served many different purposes. (Photo courtesy of the Heritage Center)

It welcomed both old stage coaches and 'Cowboy Slim'

It used to be a place where stagecoaches, on that long trek from Oakland to Stockton, would stop and change horses.

And it served as the first real business for that tiny corner which, back in 1860, was the beginning of Dublin.

Now it's the Village Saloon, one of the oldest — and few — original buildings left in the Valley. And it has just been taken over at the beginning of this year by Virginia Madden, who says that the "historical value" of the comfortable old place attracted her to it.

The saloon, once known as Green's Saloon after its first owner, John Green, was built back in 1860, making it the third oldest remaining building in Dublin, after St. Raymond's Church and Murray School.

It was a general store, and later a stagecoach stop for weary travellers.

"Early historians of Alameda County regarded the building of Green's store as the beginning of Dublin," according to Richard Freudenheim, history program developer at the Alameda County Heritage Center.

Later, in 1912, it was the site of the first public library in Dublin, Freudenheim said, as well as acting as the first post office in Dublin.

Freudenheim estimates that the building first became a tavern "shortly after the second world war" and has been through many owners.

He calls the architecture of the place "American vernacular," utilizing styles which were very common for the period, such as a high front and two stories.

Much of the original siding is still uncovered along of the the back of the building, he adds, and the upper story of the saloon still exists but is not longer in use.

"You hear about Cowboy Slim, and how he would ride his horse in the door," says Virginia Madden with a smile. The place, with its ancient exterior and antioue feeling "really grows on you after awhile."

Congressman visits lab

Congressman Carl Purcell (R-Mich.) recently toured the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory and received an explanation about the geothermal energy program ongoing at LLL. Above, Andy Lundberg (left), geothermal energy project engineer, pxplains the detrimental effects of brine on equipment used in the program. Baseball-size chunks of salts that came from a pool of brine are shown on the table at right. The congressman also viewed LLL programs into laser fusion, magnetic fusion, solar energy, oil shale conversion, conservation and energy research planning. Also pictured on Purcell's left are Ken Street, LLL associate director for the energy and resource programs; Gary Higgins, technical advisor to Street; and Larry Killion of the U.S. Department of Energy.

Lab staff retirement reviewed

LIVERMORE — Employees at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory are being asked to comment on options proposed for members of the University of California Retirement System (UCRS) that could alter age restrictions for retirement.

An administrative memo distributed last week asked for input on two proposed options that would either extend the mandatory retirement age or eliminate it altogether.

The first option would require UCRS members to retire on July 1 following age 67. This would be adjusted to age 70 if pending federal legislation is approved.

Provisions would exist for reappointment after retirement in certain cases.

The second option would provide for retirement at age 67 unless the employee requested a one-year delay.

Employees would have to apply one year before the scheduled retirement date to postpone their retirement. Department heads would be responsible for reviewing each employee's performance and competance and could approve a one-year delay. Applications would have to be resubmitted each year the employee wishes to remain.

State law recently eliminated a mandatory retirement age for persons in the Public Employees Retirement System. Pending federal legislation would push the mandatory age to 70.

The Lab asked employees to respond to the proposals before Jan. 25.

Lions launch drive to aid blind

DUBLIN — The Dublin San Ramon Lions club will launch their Youth and Community Activities Fund Drive Jan. 28.

This is the 30th annual drive held by Lions International.

The purpose is to raise money to pay for projects aimed at helping people who are blind plus other worthwhile community oriented programs.

Some of the funds raised last year were used to buy the Dublin Library two copies of "Newsweek" talking magazine for public use. People who are visually handicapped may check out the talking magazine records the same way books are checked out. The records can be played on any phonograph that inclues 33⅓ in its speed range. The library also has a phonograph on which the records may be played.

Dublin librarian, Virginia Bennett, said the library also has large print books for people who are visually handicapped.

Lions will be ready to receive ticket donations of $1, Jan. 28, between Mervyn's and Payless in Dublin. They will continue taking donations at that location for "a few weekends," according to Lion Tom Driver.

Tickets can also be obtained from Lions club members, some Dublin merchants or by calling Lion President Gerald Abernathy at 828-5080; Lion Chairman Paul Ernst at 828-2812 or Driver at 829-0194.

Ticket owners with winning numbers will be eligible to receive the following awards. First award will be $6000, paid off in $1200 segments over a period of five years. Second award will be a 1978 Cheverolet Chevette; third, $1500; fourth, $750. Awards five through 14 will be $100; 15 through 100, $50.

Ka-Boom A Mighty Tree Falls

DANVILLE — "It was a frightening, frightening thing," said homeowner Katherine Sherk after a huge oak tree crashed onto the roof of her home before dawn Thursday.

Loss was estimated at more than $5,000.

"My entire yard is full of logs," said Sherk who expected to have the tree removed this morning.

The tree is estimated to be about 300 years old.

"I've taken fantastic care of that tree. I've spent a lot of money having it sprayed twice a year," she said, bemoaning the loss of the tree that was about 4 feet in diameter.

She attributed heavy rains and poor drainage to the accident.

Workmen covered the damaged roof to keep the rain out.

One tree removal company estimated it would get a minimum of six cords of wood from the tree.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government should require a second medical opinion on all hysterectomies it finances for poor women or doctors may flout proposed new restrictions on sterilization, a health organization warns.

Dr. Sydney Wolfe of the consumer - oriented Health Research Group charges that without a second opinion, some doctors may continue to perform hysterectomies solely to sterilize a woman while claiming there were other medical reasons for the operation.

Valley-Santa Rita traffic shows confusing patterns

PLEASANTON — Can traffic signals be a miracle cure? Perhaps not, but city staff is asking council members to wait and watch six months before hiring another traffic expert to clear the congestion at Valley Avenue and Santa Rita Road.

Signals went up at that intersection Friday, almost two months after several council members began complaining about the situation in and about the roads and shopping centers there.

Member Ken Mercer in particular expressed dissatisfaction with the new raised medians and left turn lane recently constructed by the city's traffic department. He wondered if the intersection was better off before steps to quell traffic problems there were taken.

Surrounded by Amador Shopping Center, the intersection receives an unusually heavy traffic load.

Over a month ago, council ordered staff to research the cost of hiring an "outside traffic expert" to come in a investigate the often crowded and confused traffic at Valley and Santa Rita.

Staff will report back on that subject at Tuesday's council meeting, at 8 p.m., 30 West Angela Street.

In a detailed report, traffic engineer Ken Lamb asks council to wait and give the signals a chance to improve the situation before hiring someone to possibly re-design the system.

According to the staff report, 21 accidents took place near the intersection last year. Lamb estimates 10 of those could have been prevented by the signals and medians recently installed.

Conn...gess...tion? Take three traffic signals and wait.

Pleasanton to revise business district rules

PLEASANTON — The rules are changing for merchants and local business persons.

The city is considering the first major commercial zoning revision in almost 10 years.

When passed, the detailed report will effect future businesses here, as well as any current operation which tries to rebuild after a disaster.

"Some current uses will become non-conforming uses and some uses that weren't allowed before will be," says planning director Bob Harris.

Take bars as an example. Currently bars are permitted uses in several commercial zones. Under the revisions, a person wishing to" a bar would have to apply for a conditional use permit, going through the design review board and planning commission.

"Basically, we felt bars shouldn't be automatically allowed anywhere in town," explains Harris.

Some revisions expand zoning uses.

Auto repair shops are allowed in commercial service districts now, but motorcycle repair shops are not.

Suggested revisions would change that zoning to allow cycle shops, in order to keep the zoning laws consistent.

Planning Commission delayed approving the revisions over a week ago after deciding to seek more public input.

Police chief

In the aftermath of Chief Ronald Lindgren's sudden "resignation" from his post in Livermore, there is need for careful contemplation by the city's leadership, and by all members of the community.

We have no facts (and apparently no one else does either) to support charges of wrongdoing on the part of Chief Lindgren. That is a matter for the District Attorney's to pursue ... but even that official has been strangely inconsistent in his response to the matter.

There are others to say, and print, allegations against the entire city structure for "the hatchet job being done on Ron Lindgren." This conspiracy is supposed to involve the rank and file of that police department, the city manager and even the city council. We find the possibility of a covert alliance of that magnitude too preposterous to warrant serious consideration.

(If Chief Lindgren were the victim of such a conspiracy, the character of that man would never let him fade from office without a fight, including his demand for a full hearing of any charges. Lindgren's future w epfrcement in law enforcement would demand nothing less.)

What is left then — and will still be here long after the Lindgren affair has disappeared — is the community, the people and their government. These are values which must not be sacrificed in any attempt to twist the Lindgren affair to some one's political advantage.

Students concerned

Dear Mayor Tirsell & Councilmen:

I am writing this letter on behalf of a group of concerned and bewildered students who wish to express our feelings for a man who has had considerable impact on our lives, Police Chief Ronald Lindgren. Chief Lindgren has been our instructor in the "Administration of Justice" class at Livermore High School since early September. Throughout this time we have come to know and respect him, not only for the fine teacher that he is but for the compassion and caring he shows for his fellow human beings.

We feel that Chief Lindgren is an honest person. One who we feel comfortable talking with, knowing that no judgement will be passed concerning our values and, or beliefs. Our experience with the Chief has been positive and rewarding. We greatly appreciate the opportunity that we have had to learn from him, which has allowed us to grow a little more as people. In light of recent developments, we feel it is appropriate to express our confidence in, and support of Chief Lindgren. We will miss him ...

The week in retrospect

Jarvis Initiative

There's nothing "half-way" about the Jarvis Tax Limitation Initiative scheduled for the June ballot.

Knowledgeable observers are almost equally divided on what its effects might be, some saying it will provide Californians with prosperity heretofore unknown and the opposition claiming it'll open the road to economic disaster.

The proposed amendment to the state constitution would limit annual property taxes to 1 per cent of market value ($400 on a $40,000 house), and limit reassessments to an increase of 2 per cent per year.

Howard Jarvis' measure qualified for the June ballot with an all-time California record for petition signaturesone million-plus.

If passed, there would be an amendment to the state constitution reading in part:

"The maximum amount of any ad valorem tax on real property shall not exceed 1 per cent of the full cash value of such property. The 1 per cent tax to be collected by the counties and apportioned according to law to the districts within the counties.

"The limitation provided for in the above paragraph shall not apply to ad valorem taxes or special assessments to pay the interest and redemption charges on any indebtedness approved by the voters prior to the time this section becomes effective.

"The full cash value means the county assessor's valuation of real property as shown on the 1974-75 tax bill under "full cash value," or thereafter, the appraised value of real property when purchased, newly constructed, or a change in ownership has occured after the 1975 assessment. All real property not already assessed up to the 1975-76 tax levels may be reassessed to reflect that valuation.

"The fair market value base may reflect from year to year the inflationary rate not to exceed 2 per cent for any given year or reduction as shown in the consumer price index or comparable data for the area under taxing jurisdiction.

"From and after the effective date of this article, any changes in State taxes enacted for the purpose of increasing revenues collected pursuant thereto whether by increased rates or changes in methods of computation must be imposed by an Act passed by not less than two-thirds of all members elected to each of the two houses of the Legislature, except that no new ad valorem taxes on real property, or sales or transaction taxes on the sales of real property may be imposed.

"Cities, counties and special districts, by a two-thirds vote of the qualified electors of such district, may impose special taxes on such district, except ad valorem taxes on real property or a transaction tax or sales tax on the sale of real property within such city, county, or special district."

The kicker to this proposed amendment is that, if passed by the electorate, it goes into effect July 1.

Jarvis has predicted that if voters approve the initiative, "There'll be a business boom in this state of unparalleled proportions."

Alameda County supervisors have taken a slightly different evaluation of the initiative!

Earlier this month, the "Oakland 5" mulled over a list of "large corporations" that County Assessor Donald Hutchinson says would receive "big tax breaks."

The purported reason the firms would benefit is that the tax reform initiative would limit the assessor to only a 2 per cent annual increase in the assessments.

Initiative proponents say it will place severe limits on local goverment spending, simply by controlling property tax revenues.

Others simply say that the alleged severity will roust Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr. and the Legislature into enacting "some intelligent relief measures."

The volatile Jarvis, state chairman of the United Organizations of Taxpayers, says "What we're trying to do with this initiative is force state and local government to apply property taxes to property services such as fire, police, and street maintenance.

"It does not mean bulging welfare roles and food stamps," Jarvis add. "Those are not property tax services. They sould be financed by the population as a whole if we are to have them."

Round the town

He had a sad, bewildered look. Like a man on the brink of doing something terrible with his life. I asked this good citizen the reason for his distress.

"I have been a registered voter all of my adult life," Good Citizen told me. "I study the candidates, I vote my conscience, I even poke all those little holes in the ballot as instructed."

That is very commendable, I told him. But why would such good citizenship make this Good Citizen so sad.?

"I have convinced myself, through the years, that the people who aspire to public office — and most especially those who are elected to such office — are on the fringe of normal society ... the kooks and the crooks ... those not too bright and some not too honest ... the oddballs of the world who would be on welfare if they weren't on the public payroll. Know what I mean?

I agreed with Good Citizen that this summation of the public servant is widely accepted.

"But what if those politicians are really a fair cross section of society!?" Good Citizen asked, nervously. "What if we good citizens are electing people to office who are no better, no worse, than you and me??"

This was a question I had never confronted before. I agreed with Good Citizen that it raised serious problems for all of civilized society.

"Everybody knows the mayor is really off the wall, right?" G.C. advised me. "And there never has been a member of council who — once installed in office and absorbed into the system — doesn't qualify for the nut farm, right?"

"The same applies to our representatives in Sacramento and in Washington ... every last one a bona fide dingie, agreed? And look at our recent experience with presidents," Good Citizen advised me. "A bigger bunch of misfits, con artists and frustrated travel agents the world has never seen.

"Oh sure, we elect them time and again to the White House and the State House," G.C. continued. "And we give them a lot of understanding and even some patient love. But that's only because we know that if that screw-loose wasn't in office, somebody just as bad — maybe even worse — would take his or her place. That's the American tradition."

Good Citizen seemed to have his finger on the pulse of American politics rather firmly. He was obviously well informed, and I so advised him.

"That's what really bothers me!" he exclaimed. "If I'm really the typical, well informed good citizen, and I'm right in assuming that everybody I ever helped elect to public office is a turkey, then why I am getting this terrible feeling that public servants might be just as good as decent people??"

I could tell that Good Citizen was getting himself into a terrible state, and I urged him to calm down. After all, I advised him, soothingly, there have been one or two public servants in our nation's past who were every bit as good as real people.

"Name them!" Good Citizen demanded, and I suddenly found myself at a loss for words.

"Oh sure, we like to say that Abe Lincoln was honest, but you never hear anybody call him brilliant! George Washington was a fine general, but how many American mothers would want him to marry their daughter?

"Then there's Jimmy Carter," G.C. continued. "We say he's the best man for the office because he beat out people like Ford, Brown and Reagan. But that sure doesn't prove that Carter was human, does it?"

He had a point. But, I reminded Good Citizen, our political system has always sifted through the ranks to give us the best person available. That's true right from the presidency on down to the city council.

"Yes, and that's what's really got me worried," Good Citizen said, looking terribly sad again. "It was one thing to sift through the political junk pile and send the best of those rejects to high office. We've learned to live with that.

"But how in the world could we ever accept that politicians are real people ... good citizens like you and me. That's something I could never learn to live with," he said, disconsolately.

And then he jumped off his good citizenship pedestal, shattering another great American fable.

Letters to the Times

Build that line

Editor, The Times:

Here are eight good reasons why the valley sewer pipeline to the bay should be built;

Future reclamation of this waste water can be done cheaper since the salt brine can be piped to the bay; Salt ponds, reservoirs and underground wells to dispose of this brine will not be necessary, thereby keeping thousands of acres of private land on the tax rolls; Lower costs in the design of reclamation plants will be possible since the salt brine disposal will not be a problem; We can divert as little or as much of the waste water from the pipeline for reclamation as we desire.

The cost of pumping this waste water over the hills will be lowered as we begin to reduce the flow for reclamation purposes; Our precious underground water reserves will be protected from manmade pollution; Politically, it keeps us out of expensive legal battles with our neighbors downstream; Intellectually it makes sense because the pipeline gives us the opportunity to experiment with reclamation schemes without any hazard to our environment or our neighbors.

Police mystery

Editor, The Times:

The City Manager hires a private eye, and the Chief of Police resigns because of "irreconcilable differences in internal matters in departmental management philosphy".

What really happened?

It seems that we who are voters, taxpayers, criminal defendants and watchers of government have been much put down by city hall, and very much let down by our semi - alert press.

Taxpayers gripe

It is hard to believe but the politicians still haven't understood the message sent loud and clear by the more than one million voters who signed the petition placing the Jarvis Initiative on the June ballot.

Oh, they are running scared all right. Governor Jerry Brown, in calling a special session of the Legislature on property tax relief, said he wants a bill on his desk by January 27 to meet the deadline for placing an opposition proposal on that ballot. Legislators responded by introducing a new rash of tax relief bills. Combined, they contain all of the schemes which resulted in tax reform efforts bogging down last year.

Frightened though they are they have yet to comprehend the momentum behind Jarvis. They just don't believe the initiative will pass.

In near panic, city and county officials met in Sacramento to discuss the problem. The bulk of their time was spent denouncing the Jarvis measure, complaining that it will reduce their revenues by $7 billion. This, they claimed, will force them to eliminate police and fire services as well as street and park maintenance. The selections obviously are intended to frighten voters away from Jarvis. None suggested there could be many other operations which could be foregone with little or no damage to the public.

They indicated they are now willing to accept legislation to reduce property taxes and impose revenue limitations. But they demand in return the state make up those losses and institute a new revenue sharing program as well.

If that weren't enough to demonstrate their failure to fathom what the voters really want, San Francisco Mayor George Moscone provided the capper. He called not only for full reimbursement by the state of revenues lost by property tax reductions but demanded more state financed local spending in the form of new expanded public housing programs. He hasn't tumbled to one of the underlying causes of the housing shortages, the high property taxes.

The solons themselves are scurrying around in a sea of confusion. Many are still pushing property tax relief tied to income levels, the so-called "circuit breaker" theory. Others continue a desire to wire repeal of the business inventory tax to property tax relief. Talk about repeal of the unitary tax on business also continues.

The concern about business taxes, obviously aimed at building confidence in Brown with the business community, is a ploy and nothing more. Such changes are not of great moment. Inventory taxes, like all business taxes are passed along to the consumer. The unitary tax affects some large corporations but it isn't really keeping business out of California.

What is pitiful is that the solons are moving to agreement on a relief bill which would only provide about a $150 cut on property taxes but permit annual adjustments upwards for costs of living. It is no relief at all for it simply would reduce a $1500 tax bill initially by $150 but permit a 10 per cent cost of living rate to restore it the next year with further increases to follow. To do this the state would squander its surplus and commit increasing amounts in subsequent years. The very existence of those surpluses prove the people are being overtaxed.

They should quit kidding themselves. The Jarvis Initiative doesn't require the state to reimburse local governments for the losses by reason of the 1 percent limitation on property taxes. What it calls for is a reduction in spending by local government and state government too! Unless the solons can come up with something to meet these demands the Jarvis proposition will pass overwhelmingly.

Two good people

Two phone calls and one obituary later, I am not feeling very well.

The phone calls were to Minneapolis. Vacation planning time coming up. How are things back home with my old college friends?

Big funeral for Hubert Humphrey, Minnesota's number one citizen, said John. He's close to it. John heads the Hubert Humphrey Institute at the University of Minnesota. The professors aim to raise $20 million to send idealistic public servants and professors out into the world. Japanese government just pledged a big sum, John heard.

It's the memorial Humphrey wanted for himself. John and Judy were back in Washington and had dinner with the senator and others to kick off plans for the institute last summer. "We've raised close to $6 million so far," John reports.

I ask about our friend Barbara. Hubert Humphrey comes up again. She had the same operation Humphrey had for cancer. A colostomy. That's what prompted my phone call. Barbara seemed to be doing well after her stomach operation a year ago, but this sounds serious.

It is serious, says John. One of her former doctors saw her in the hospital hallway when she came in for a treatment. "Oh, are you still alive," he said. "Forget everything d abput the you've heard about the sensitivity of the medical profession," John added.

Knowing Barbara, I'm sure she took it in good humor. She was always a little stoical, but very cheerful and a good artist. She spent a lot of years teaching art to kids in Minneapolis schools. Especially to kids who had a lot of pooblems. Now she's home with her two small children. And, says John, in bed for a few days after each treatment.

I call Clarence and Barbara. Clarence talks about the old high school reunion at Christmas. Bob Stich and Felix Mannella are lawyers now. That figures, I say. And Tim is still looking for a job. That figures, too. Pat and Jean have eight kids now. Jeez.

Barbara is doing pretty well, says Clarence. She has her ups and downs. Can't come to the phone, though. Pain in the abdomen. More talk. My best to her. Haven't seen you two since Monterey in '72. Maybe I'll get back there this summer. Call if you're out here on business.

Hubert Humphrey was 66. Barbara is 37. Bernard Shore was 49 when he died from cancer Monday. I did a double take when the obituary came in from Callaghan's Mortuary. I knew he had cancer, but you always pull for someone who does and you think that will bring them through.

Bernie Shore had a lot of things going for him. I knew two of them: his encyclopedic knowledge of the personnel in swing and jazz bands and his great idealism about hiring more minorities and women at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, where he worked in the biomedical department.

When I covered the Lab for another paper, Bernie brought a lot of things to my attention about Lab actions or inactions. He was a mover and shaker in getting a stronger affirmative action plan at LLL. He helped form the Lab's first union of professionals, too. Management doesn't like to a call it a union, but that's what it is.

Bernie's politics and his musical interest had a lot in common. Jazz was the first place in the arts where blacks and whites started cooperating. I think he liked that fact about it. Justice and humanity were important to him.

No one builds monuments to the Bernies and Bararas of the world, but Bernies and Barbaras of the world, but their contributions are just as important to us as the Hubert Humphreys.

After Christmas

Getting a house back in order after the holidays is a mind-boggling task.

Before Christmas, most people are so busy shopping and getting ready for the main event they let some areas of housekeeping slide.

In an effort to keep the house tidied up for expected and unexpected visitors, frenzied housewives and other folks poke unanswered letters, new magazines, mending, unironed clothing and other routineitems in any handy spot.

"I'll take care of that after the holidays," they mumble.

The holidays become a sort of mental relief station from their usual compulsive efficiency.

But after the partridge has flown the pear tree, these "putter-off'ers" spend the next month or so searching for misfiled articles and dispatching them properly.

Compounding the chaos, the Christmas tree and decorations must be taken down and stored. (I notice a few houses are still sporting outside Christmas decorations).

And finding room for the barrage of new gifts also takes a lot of tactical command; especially if the domicile is small and devoid of abundant storage-space.

In my own case after the last fa-la-la had died down, I was tempted to back a pickup truck to the front door and just start shoveling the accumulation strewn over the house into the truck bed.

It took a seven-hour stint after work one night for my husband and me to clear a path. That included tackling piled up laundry, housecleaning, taking down the tree and decorations plus wondering what was contained in all those funny-shaped wads of foil in the refrigerator.

Then there's the odd gifts you have no idea how or where to use.

Not that we received anything as wild as a purple satin throw pillow with "Welcome to San Diego, Sailor" painted on it in rainbow colors. But an outsized candle resembling W.C. Fields' head has me stumped.

That might be just dandy in a recreation room. But hanged if I can find a spot for it in our pigeonhole size town house.

Maybe I could melt it down, color it red, shape it like a heart and use it as a center piece when I serve my Xmas/Valentine cookies. We'll see.

But anyway, the house is as back to normal as it is likely to get.

The rooms have that bare look they get after being stripped of Christmas finery.

However, a couple of days after our cleanup campaign, we noticed we had left a small decorative Christmas bell hanging in an out of the way spot.

We may just leave it up and get an early start on next year's holiday season chaos.

"Let's put it this way — you're not as sick as the dollar!"

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My 17-year-old daughter has a 6-week-old baby with no father and, in a sense, no mother—my daughter simply has no notion of what having a child means. I believe she thinks a baby is a doll you can show off to folks when you feel like it, but the rest of the time, can be put in a closet. I don't want to pick, but this child isn't being fed properly and I worry because he's slow and not like any of my babies were. My daughter also leaves him alone. She won't admit this but I know it's true. A. R.

DEAR A.R.: If you daughter can't, or won't provide her child with the care he needs, try to convince her to accept your help until she's able to give the child the attention he must have if he's to have a normal, healthy life. The first six months of a child's life are absolutely crucial in many ways, but especially in the area of diet. If a baby has an inadequate diet from birth to six months, if there is a protein deficiency, malnutrition may stunt the brain as well as the body. Damage to the brain cells at this time can permanently and seriously impair the child's ability to learn.

If neither you nor your daughter can give this child the care it needs, then she should give the baby up for placement. I can't too strongly stress the seriousness of this. Time is critical. If she puts off her decision, or delays learning how to care for her infant herself, it may be too late. She's given birth to this child and she now has a responsibility to do what is best for him. From what you write, I think the best course might be placing the child with an adoption agency.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I've been teaching college freshmen for 15 years. I've seen a change toward more and more selfishness. Many of the students seem incapable of caring about anyone but themselves. What really shocks me is that ther parents don't seem to care and they too are turned inward. I mentioned this to one parent who's up to her ears in various encounter sessions. She seems to feel that total self-concern is a sign of good health. I don't I'm of the old school. I think looking outward and helping others can still be rewarding. V.S.

DEAR V.S.: I agree with you, but I also believe it's important for each person to know and like himself. If he doesn't understand, respect and even love himself, then he probably won't be able to give much to others. The students you teach are at an age when they're still trying to find themselves and to establish their own identity. It seems to me that this is a time where preoccupation with self can be forgiven.

However, it is unfortunate that this self-concern and narcissism is not limited to the young, but seems to be increasing among people of all ages. Some psychoanalysists and social critics refer to the "me" generaton and feel the cult of "I" is expanding at an alarming rate. Consciousness-expansion and self-improvement courses in many of the sections of the country now have the status of a religion. The '70s, some feel, is the decade of narcissism.

Christopher Lasch of the University of Rochester feels that society rewards the self-centered, and the narcissistic tend to rise to the top of the social and business ladder. Bureaucratic organizations put a premium on the manipulation of people and deep personal attachments aren't required.

I think that you, as a teacher, are in a position to remind young peole that the "we" of mankind is important as the "I" of the individual.

Q. "WHAT IS A DINGO?"
A. THE DINGO IS A WILD DOG FOUND ONLY IN AUSTRALIA. DINGOES LOOK LIKE DOMESTIC DOGS, AND WERE ONCE TAME.

Few wild dogs exist today. One that does is the dingo of Australia.

The dingo looks very much like a domestic dog. It is about the size of a small collie. It has an alert face, erect ears, and a bushy tail.

In its wild state the dingo is fierce and bold. Most likely, the dingo was an early breed of domestic dog that the primitive aborigines brought with them when they came from Asia to Australia in the ancient past.

Now the dingo runs wild, living and hunting in packs and feeding on rabbits and kangaroos. When European settlers began to raise sheep in Australia, the dingo turned its attention to attacking sheep as well, and quickly became a menace to the farmer.

Dingo pups are sometimes tamed for hunting by the native Australians.

Wild dingoes yelp and howl but do not bark. When raised in captivity, however, they learn to imitate the bark of other dogs.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — My problem is lots of gas. When I am out exercising or just being active I feel great, but when I sit down the pressure starts. It feels like my stomach is swelling and I have to lossen my belt in order to relieve the pressure. I cannot wear anything tight around my waist at any time. There was a time when I couldn't do any sit-ups at all because of the pain immediately afterwards and even for several days afterward. I stuck with it and after a few years can do sit-ups without pain. My worst problem is when I sit at a desk, at the dinner table or drive a car.

Regardless of what food I eat, it takes little food to make me feel full and the pressure is greater right after I eat.

I am 37, weigh 155 pounds and am 5 feet 8 inches tall. I jog four or five miles a day. Each morning I have a bowl of bran cereal and then work out for 45 minutes, which includes the jogging and calisthenics. Then I have two bran muffins and coffee. During the day I have an orange, apple and pear. Supper is usually a four-course, well-balanced meal. I don't smoke or drink alcoholic beverages.

The X ray of my stomach and a gastroscopic test were normal.

Please tell me what to do. What could it be and who can I see about my problem? If I can do without eating and keep on the move all the time my problem would be solved.

DEAR READER — Your description of your problem sounds worse than most, but gas is a common problem. There are two facets, the gas itself and the inability to pass it readily.

The gas is mostly from two sources — that resulting from fermentation of undigested food and that caused by swallowing air — which we all must do when we swallow liquids and eat. In many instances the air swallowed is the main factor. How can you stop it? First, you have to be aware that you are swallowing air. Try holding a rubber eraser between your teeth, and you will then become aware of swallowing. This helps many people break the habit.

Unusual career opportunities could suddenly pop up this coming year in your area of expertise. Looking for the bluebird elsewhere may be an unproductive venture.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Tooting your own horn regarding an achievement that you are justifiably proud of may be music to your ears, but it could sound like big brassy notes to others.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A proposal today might look very good on paper but it could have flaws not evident at first glance.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It may be necessary to make a quick decision today that affects your household without first consulting your mate. He or she may not readily see the wisdom of your choice.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You will not lack clever ideas today, but the manner in which you implement them may not be on par with your brainstorms. Procedure is as important as concept.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Early in the day you manage your resources with ingenuity, but by afternoon you could toss caution to the winds and be quite wasteful.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Select activities today that get you outside of the house. If you have the same mundane things to contend with, the walls could start closing in.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Some of your quick judgments today will be remarkably astute, while other issues you ponder could be wrongfully evaluated due to negative thinking.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Unfortunately, everyone you deal with today cannot be taken at face value. An acquaintance with devious motives may try something shady.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Something profitable could occur today in a most unusual manner. It's the type of thing that will be best enjoyed if shared with others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Live in the now and ride on the wave today. Dwelling on the past will only dim the twinkle in your eye.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Give your time today to persons that you can help or be of service to, rather than friends who are cutting it on their own. Your joy comes from aiding where needed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today you are going to want to be free to call your own shots. Avoid people who feel it's their duty to make decisions for you.

South didn't have much of a problem at trick one. If he tried the diamond finesse and it lost, East would lead back a spade and West would cash a lot of spade tricks. So, South rose with dummy's ace of diamonds and went after clubs.

He did it both the right way and what was also the winning way. He led dummy's nine of clubs and let it ride.

If any of you readers point out that if West held the singleton queen of clubs, South's first-round, club finesse would have led to a four-trick set, we aren't going to argue with you.

West did hold the singleton four of that suit, but he might also have held the singleton five or six once East had produced the three.

Thus, South's play would lose against the singleton queen but win against any other singleton. Of course, South would not have gone down four tricks if he had cashed the ace of clubs, returned to dummy for a finesse and played from there. He would have made at least seven tricks, but South had taken the best play for his dangerous contract.

Slow pace of court cases stirs complaints

Complaints about the slow speed of the typical trial are getting more common these days, as noted in a Times story last week emphasizing concerns of the parents of a sexually molested teenager in Livermore.

How bad is the problem and what can be done about it, The Times asked a judge and two attorneys recently.

Deputy District Attorney Tom Orloff, descendant of a prominent pioneer Valley family, said one of the problems at the superior court level is the shortage of judges.

"It's a rare day when all of our cases go to trial," a said Orloff. "More common is having three out of eight heard, the rest continued."

Adding three or four more courts to the 30 now existing at the Alameda County superior court level would break the logjam, said Orloff.

Livermore Municipal Court Judge Mark Eaton had another suggestion to streamline the whole process: combine the municipal and superior courts. If that were done, some of the legal motions at preliminary hearings would not be repeated a second time, as they are now at the superior court level.

Eaton said there currently is a bill in the Legislature to consolidate the two levels of courts. The municipal courts grew out of the old justice of the peace system, but now, in a more complex urban soiciety, they seem to be duplicating the superior courts at some points, said Judge Eaton.

The complexities of urban life also figured in a statement recently by the California Bar Association in its analysis of the court logjam.

"Court congestion is real. It results, first of all, from the continuing increase in court filings throughout the state, which demonstrates the respect of our he epurts people for the courts as the place for resolution of their serious disputes.

"It also results from more and more complex laws which are passed each year, reflecting the increasing urbanization of modern society," said the bar assocaiation.

The bar made its statement as part of a censure of Anthony Kline, who is Governor Jerry Browns's emmissary to the legal profession. Kline said that lawyers may be a part of the problem with court congestion.

David Harris, a Pleasanton attorney who handles criminal cases, doesn't think defense attorneys are the bad guys in the piece.

"The finest thing about our justice system is that a person is assumed innocent until proven guilty," said Harris. "The state has a great deal of power in a trial — it can employ investigators, and pays for the prosecuting attorneys. The defendeant many times is a poor guy who has to take food from his kids' mouth to pay an attorney."

In that context, it's no wonder that the defense needs time to build its case, said Harris.

Judge Eaton, whose own municipal court runs on a fast schedule usually, says there's no problem with delays for proper motions. However, there ought to be a point after which no more new motions can be made, he said.

"The proceedings can be slow. In my opinion, oftentimes they are slow. In my court, we are set up so that from the time of arraignment to the time of the preliminary hearing or trial, perhaps 30 to 45 days passes.

"There is no congestion in my court. However, sometimes the efficiency of a court conflicts with the rights of the defendants," said Judge Eaton.

Plea-bargaining — where the district attorney drops various charges and stays only with the strongest one likely to get a conviction — is used a great deal in the local municipal court. If it were not, the Livermore-Pleasanton Municipal Court would need 20 judges, not two, said Judge Eaton. Some 90 per cent of the cases are settled through plea bargaining and never come to trial.

But that doesn't mean Judge Eaton lops off time from the sentence as part of the deal. "I sentence on what the person did, not on what he or she pleaded," said the jurist.

Most attorneys file their motions properly, though there are a few who simply file motions for delay, he added.

It brought to mind the old saying among defense attorneys: "Never try a murder case until the grass is growing in the graveyard."

Or, as Orloff put it, memories of witnesses dim with time and delays are to the defense's advantage.

Until rain drops stop falling on our heads, the road widening project along Dublin Boulevard and Dougherty Road will remain at a standstill.

Dublin Boulevard

Heavy rains bog down road work

DUBLIN — A road widening project along Dublin Boulevard and Dougherty Road has temporarily bogged down due to recent heavy rainfall.

Alameda County Public Works Inspector, Rick Wetzig, said the projected completion date has slipped from April 11, 1978 to May 11, 1978. Wetzig is overseeing the project.

It would take a minimum of one week of good weather before the ground would be dry enough for crews to start working again, Wetzig reported.

"Heavy machinery would sink down in the mud if they tried working now," he added. "We're at the stage where more base material is needed and trucks cannot get in."

One thing in favor of the project is that it is 50 per cent completed.

"The contractor is ahead of schedule," Wetzig explained. "He has only used 30 per cent of the time allotted."

The contractor is Gallagher and Burk, Inc. of Oakland.

The road widening project will include "full signalization" at the corner of Dublin Boulevard and Dougherty Road ... including left turn arrows, Wetzig declared.

The bid price for the federally funded project was $388,315.60. Federal aid amounted to 82.4 per cent.

Wetzig said there is a slight amount of excavation left to do along Dougherty Road. Dublin Boulevard is "pretty much ready" as far as grading is concerned.

The Dulbin Boulevard portion of the project starts at the bridge and goes to the "westerly" edge of K-Mart's parking lot. Dougherty Road construction begins at Sierra Court and goes up to the Interstate 580 overpass bridge. Wetzig said there was some minor work being done along Village Parkway.

Wetzig said it wasn't official yet but there was some discussion about resurfacing Dublin Boulevard along the project site. A mixture of asphalt/concrete would be used if the proposal to resurface is approved.

Rabid skunk prompts call for exposed puppy deaths

MARTINEZ — Sixteen puppies had to be destroyed last week as a result of possible exposure to rabies.

The six-week-old pups from two litters had not immunized against rabies when they were exposed to a rabid skunk, according to Ross Alexander. He is Chief Health Educator of the Contra Costa County Health Department.

The skunk, found dead in the dogs. El Sobrante dogrun, was possibly killed by one of the puppies mothers. The mother dogs had current rabies vaccinations and are now under observation.

The skunk is the second wild animal that has been identified as rabid by the county health department laboratory in two weeks.

County residents are again cautioned not to handle wild animals and to protect their dogs with rabies vaccination.

The Animal Control Division of the County Department of Agriculture has four rabies vaccination clinics scheduled for dogs only that are four months of age or older.

State sends $1.5 million for share in pipeline cost

A check for $1,511,500 representing the amount of state funds advanced for construction of the Valley's sewage export pipeline was received by the Livermore-Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA) Friday and placed into a Pleasanton bank.

The funds are 90 percent of the state's share of the $28 million project. The money was advanced to provide for immediate cash flow needs pending sale of approximately $4.5 million in bonds to pay for the local share of project costs.

The federal government is epe paying 75 percent of the project's costs, with the state and local governments splitting the remaining 25 percent.

LAVWMA project manager Bob Bradford said the money was divided into three accounts — checking, passbook savings and a 90-day time account.

Construction on the project will begin in early April. The pipeline, designed to stretch 31 miles to connect up with the south county "super-sewer" and dump sewage into San Francisco Bay, is expected to be completed in late December, 1979.

Local governments will begi collecting money from Valley residents to support the project. Livermore residents will pay approximately $3.26 per month for 12 months via the property tax. The charge will then drop to about $3 to cover operation and maintenance costs, bond interest payments, and replacement costs.

Pleasanton residents will pay approximately $1.73 extra per month-on their sewer bill for about two years, with the amount rising to about $2.65.

Dublin residents will pay $1.75 on their sewer service bills for two years, with the cost increasing to about $2.50 per month.

3 tied for Crosby lead; Miller out

Dethroned leader Tom Watson's poor sand trap shot led to double bogey on 18th hole.

PEBBLE BEACH — Tommy McGinnis, an off-the-board (and almost off the tour) longshot in a field of the game's greatest players, fought his way to a 2-under-par 70 that lifted him into a 3-way tie for the lead Saturday in the second round of the rain-delayed Bing Crosby National Pro-Am Golf Tournament.

The skinny, graying McGinnis, still competing only because he was granted an extension of his playing rights, finished 36 holes with a 139 total and tied for the lead with Ray Floyd and Hale Irwin. Irwin shot a 70 and Floyd a 69 in the celebrity field at Spyglass Hill, probably the toughest of the three soggy Monterey Peninsula courses used for this unique event.

McGinnis played in relative privacy at Pebble Beach.

McGinnis, 30, a career nonwinner from Memphis, Tenn., acquired only $1,800 on the tour last year and faced the loss of his approved players card. He was ill part of the season, however, and was given an extension, which is rapidly running out. He now has three more tournaments to bring his total winnings up to $10,000. A fifthplace finish here would do it.

Tom Watson, the 1977 Player of the Year and defending titleholder here, had the lead alone until he double-bogeyed the final hole at Spyglass and dropped back into a group at 140, one shot off the pace halfway through the event that was rained out Thursday and now is scheduled to end Monday.

"Blah," said Watson, whose first round 66 had given him a 3-shot lead. "That's really ending on a sour note."

The notes, however, were even more sour for Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Johnny Miller.

Miller disqualified himself for signing an incorrect scorecard after Friday's first round. He signed for a 76, actually shot 77 and didn't realize the error until he saw the scores in the newspaper.

Nicklaus took a 74 and, with a 151 total, appears likely to miss the cut when the field is trimmed to the low 60 scorers after Sunday's third round.

Palmer, with a 77, is still higher — 152. He and amateur partner Gerald Ford are very much in the race in the pro-am competition, however. They're at 133, 5 strokes back of the leaders. The former President, carrying a 16 handicap, made five net birdies in their round at Spyglass. Two of those came on holes on which Palmer made double bogey. Ford picked up on several holes and did not have a score on his own ball.

Watson, winner of the Tucson Open that kicked off the 1978 season, was tied at 4 under par with U.S. Open champion Hubert Green, Ben Crenshaw, Don Bies, Don Pooley and Dr. Gil Morgan. Pooley had a 70; Green, Crenshaw and Morgan 71s, all at Spyglass Hill. Bies shot his 70 at Cypress Point.

McGinnis, actually fighting for his playing life, took a share of the top spot with a 7 iron to 10 feet on the 17th hole and had a chance to take sole control of the lead but missed a 6-foot birdie putt.

A lesson from Canadian veteran George Knudson helped turn his fortunes around, he said.

"George told me to hold the club tighter," he said. "You can't believe how tight I'm holding it now."

Irwin also had trouble on the still-wet, grainy greens. He 3- putted three times, the final one on his 18th hole, which cost him the lead alone.

Floyd flipped a short iron to 12 feet and made the birdie putt on the same hole.

Watson was clinging to a 1- shot advantage when he played the last hole, but drove into the right rough, buried his second shot under the lip of a bunker, just got it out and then 3-putted from the front of the green.

Stone Hands finally tops lightweights

LAS VEGAS — Roberto Duran, long recognized as a hard puncher with the nickname Stone Hands, proved Saturday he also can box, so now he is the undisputed lightweight champion of the world.

Duran, World Boxing Association champion, scored a technical knockout over World Boxing Council champion Esteban DeJesus at 2:32 of the 12th round Saturday in a nationally televised bout from Caesar's Palace.

DeJesus' trainer Richie Giachetti was the first to admit that he was completely surprised and taken aback by Duran's ability to box.

"Duran did not fight the fight he usually does. He usually comes out bam, bam, bam. I thought he was going to come out brawling," Giachetti said. "Duran didn't come out like a tiger like he usually does."

There was some question as to whether Duran had scored a knock out or whether DeJesus was disqualified immediately following the match. But referee Buddy Basilico said the fight was over as far as he was concerned as soon as two of DeJesus' handlers jumped into the ring after their fighter had hit the deck for the second time under the pummeling of Duran.

"I was about to pick up the count from the knockdown timekeeper when two of the handlers jumped into the ring which indicated to me that they conceded defeat," Basilico said.

Basilico said that he intended to give DeJesus an 8-count, then check to see if he could continue, but that the ring became so crowded after the seconds' jumped in the ring that he just began collecting the judges cards.

It was a short devastating right which put DeJesus down the first time and Duran said he wasn't surprised at the effect of the punch.

"I wasn't surprised. That's why they call me 'Stone Hands' in Panama," Duran said through interperter Rico Paredes, in the press room after the bout. "I knew that he had to go, that I had to kill him as soon as possible."

But Duran said he still waited a few moments and was cautious throughout the fight because he hadn't been in the ring since last September.

While Duran's boxing prowess might have been a surprise to DeJesus' camp, the tactic was completely planned according to Duran.

"I could have knocked him out earlier ..." Duran said.

Esteban DeJesus lies dazed on the floor after Roberto Duran's KO gave him title.

Potts comes back to win big match

FREMONT — It takes a lot of guts for a wrestler to walk onto a mat and go one on one in the battle of braun. It takes more than guts to do it with four stitches holding together a broken nose.

That's the condition Amador Valley's 112-pounder Steve Potts was in, when he won thr-e matches in the Mission San Jose Tournament here last night to advance to the finals.

Although he was already in pain, according to Dons coach Ron Blanton, there was more to come for the luckless grappler.

"He did an unbelievable job. He was really hurting already," Blanton said.

The last semi - final round was a narrow escape for Potts. His opponent, Robles from Marina, top - seeded in the tournament which hoste 16 schools.

The match went into overtime tied at 2-2. In the second round of overtime, Potts and Robles went flying off the mat in a tangled mass of flesh. Unfortunately for Potts, the back of his head and the scorer's table collided, and the tough senior was seeing stars.

"He wasalmost gone. I rolled him over and his eyes were turned up," Blanton said.

The coach managed to revive him, and Potts came back to ride out the third period to win 1-0 with an escape.

Livermore's Naish Piazza (150's) continued his outstanding tournament style, and advanced to the finals for the 'Pokes with a 4-0 decision over Davez of College Park High.

The Cowboys were hurting in more ways than one, but it was still a "nice and easy tournament," King said. "I've got a lot of guys out with the flu, but my sophomores are doing all right," King said.

Sophomore Garen McDonald proved the coach right, as he beat out two contenders from the East Bay Athletic League to place in the finals in the 167 weight division.

He had a 3-1 decision over Amador's Chuck Grandon and in the third round beat out Moyer of Foothill 9-4.

"He (McDonald) will be tough, but he's still a rookie," King said. McDonald was replacing Darryl Hansen, who boasts a 16-0 record and is out with strep throat.

The 140 weight division was clinched by Amador's Mike Larson, who pinned the host school's Morrow with a time of 4:37.

"He did a super job in all three matches. He beat the top seed ten to one," Blanton said.

Amador's Ernie Zumbach beat a tough challenger Ebbings from Merced 15-8 in the third round to excite Blanton even more.

"This was a tough tournament. The top two schools in the state (Clayton Valley and Merced) were here. This is the best tournament in the North Coast Section in terms of competition. We really stood them off in head - to - head competition," Blanton noted. — by Elizabeth Scoyen

Pro Bowl a great honor and bother

TAMPA, Fla. — Pretty soon, Jim Hart is going to start clearing his calendar the week after each Super Bowl.

A year ago, after Minnesota lost in Super Bowl XI, Vikings quarterback Fran Tarkenton begged off participation in the Pro Bowl, Hart was summoned to Seattle to suit up for the National Football Conference team.

Last Sunday, Roger Staubach of Dallas suffered a damaged right hand in Super Bowl XII — and Hart knew the phone would ring sooner or later. It rang at 8 a.m. Monday. A few hours later, the St. Louis Cardinals' quarterback was Pro Bowl-bound again.

"It's a shame somebody has to get hurt for me to be here, but I'm still thrilled. I still consider it an honor to be on this squad," Hart said.

Pat Haden of the Los Angeles Rams will be the NFC's starting quarterback Sunday, moving up because of Staubach's absence. Bob Griese of Miami and Ken Stabler of Oakland are the first-and second-stringers for the AFC, which has won four of the seven Pro Bowl games.

Despite the rivalry and the potential to pick up $5,000 for a victory (each losing player receives $2,500), the Pro Bowl can be an inconvenience, too. That's how a couple of defensive starters — NFC safety Charlie Waters of Dallas and AFC tackle Mike Barnes of Baltimore — view it. Both say they're delighted with the honor of All-Pro status, but ...

The 40 players were chosen by a vote of head coaches and players on each NFL club. — by Associated Press

Brenda could wrestle here

Girls on a high school wrestling team?

Just last year, the East Bay Athletic League board of governors ruled that exhibition matches between teams of girls were "exploitive" and banned the "power puff" bouts. Recent developments, though, may have girls wrestling on the same mats as the boys before long and valley coaches aren't dead set against it.

Brenda Nunes, 17, from Campbell High School, was on her school team until the West Valley Athletic League Board banned her from competing, citing a ruling which excludes girls from boys' football, wrestling and basketball teams.

Even so, Brenda managed to compete in one match and took a forfeit win when the opposing coach refused to let his wrestler go against her.

team.

She might have wrestled if she went to school a few miles up the freeway.

"I wouldn't mind it at all," said Livermore High School coach Ed King. "In fact, it might make for some more excitement. It would probably help give the team more publicity."

Granada coach Steve Page also said he wouldn't mind girls on his team.

"I wouldn't object to girls coming out for the team if they worked hard and performed as well as the boys," he said. "It might be a little awkward at first. It be be embarrassing for some girls because there are about 50 guys on the team.

"It would make everybody work a little harder," he went on. "Particuarly in practice. It might make the guys put out a little more. There's a little bit of pride involved in this."

Amador Valley head coach Ron Blanton agreed with Page's observations.

"That's an interestng question.I would let girls on the team," he said. "If they worked as hard as the boys and were physically able to do the job I wouldn't mind it at all."

Blanton did point out a few problems to be overcome.

"We might have to change the weigh-ins and have a few other rulechanges," he said. "If we got over that I would see nothing wrong with girls competing on our team. We've never had any come out yet, however."

California High School coach Dennis Regalado said he would let girls try out for the Grizzly team.

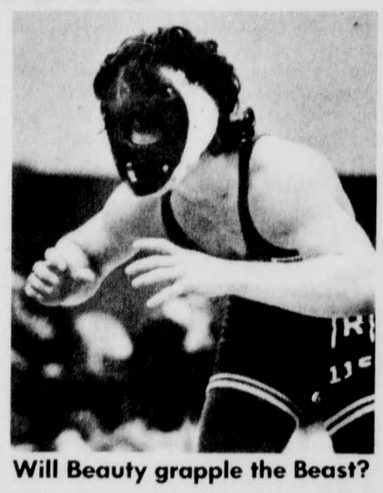
"I would let them come out," he said. "But first I would talk to them to find out if they were serious or just treating it as a joke.

"If they were going out for the team as a joke, I might not let them come out."

Regalado believes girls could do as well as boys in some weight classes.

"In the lower weight classes it's possible they could equal the boys," he said. "Those around 95 or 105 pounds. But in the heavier weight classes they would have problems as the differences in strength in the boys' favor would work against the girls.

"We had a couple of girls come out for our football team," he went on. "They tried out at wide receiver and did a fairly good job running patterns."



Will Beauty grapple the Beast?

Regalado thinks girls may come out for wrestling some day.

"I don't see why not," he said. "After all, girls are particpating in more sports than ever and I think it's inevitable that girls will turn out for the team."

Second quarter spurt lifts 'Pokes by Dons

It was billed as The Big Event. It turned into The Big Rout.

East Bay Athletic League basketball frontrunners Livermore High and Amador Valley were supposed to battle it out until death or the final buzzer did them part.

Surprisingly, the buzzer which separated the best team of the evening sounded the end of the first half when Livermore rolled to a 13 point lead en route to a 62-43 smothering in the Dons' gym Friday night.

Both teams entered the contest with 4-1 records and it looked as though Amador came to show the Cowboys just who was boss of the ranch when the Dons sprinted to a 6-0 advantage.

But Livermore coach John Erceb whistled in the full-court press and Amador collapsed as if they just read the family's recent water bill.

Dick Patterson, Livermore's 6-foot-2 senior forward, tossed in three straight baskets to knot the score as the two teams proceded to finish the first period at 12-12.

Livermore's sprinting offense went to work in the second quarter as five different players hit a bucket in lifting the Cowboys to a 24-16 lead.

Amador never got closer.

From three minutes in the first half until the end of the game, it became the Patterson-John Farfan show.

Of the Cowboys final eight points of the first half and 15 third-quarter markers, Patterson scored 11 and Farfan — a nifty 5-foot-7 guard from Guam — threw in 10.

Both teams played the fourth quarter even, but the 51-17 lead Livermore enjoyed was far too much to overcome.

Erceg was one big smile after the conquest.

"We've been gearing up for this," the youthful coach said.

"Both teams were tight at the start," said Erceg, explaining the early-game turnovers which plagued both clubs.

The Cowboys 24-point second period burst was their best scoring quarter of the season and it couldn't have come at a better time. The win was Livermore's first in the Amador gym in nine years.

Karch FT's the key

Mats trip Wolves in OT

Wes Karch calmly sunk two free throws with 1:25 left in overtime to give Granada the fianl upperhand and an East Bay Athletic victory, 75-70, over San Ramon Friday night.

Pat Fracisco added a lay - up and Steve Robinson canned a pair of free throws after Karch's charity tallies, as the Matadors withstood a furious Wolf comeback similar to the one they used to tie the game with :03 remaining in regulation play.

Dan Lambert scored 23 points, including 18 in the second half, offsetting a 30 - point performance by San Ramon guard Mike Campbell.

The Wolves led by narrow margins throughout the entire first half until Scott Fullmer returned an offensive rebound to the hoop at the buzzer to give the Mats a 33-32 halftime lead.

Led by Lambert's hot hand, Granada moved out in front by as many as eleven points midway through the third quarter, but a seven - point spurt at the end of the stanza by Campbell and Joe Ross closed the gap to three points, 53-50.

That lead disappeared with just four seconds bone in the fourth period when Campbell converted a three point play, but a pair of hoops by Lambert staked the hosts to a four point lead with just over five minutes left in the game.

The teams traded baskets until, with only :23 left, the Wolves came up empty at their end, returntin the ball and a 66-64 lead to the Matadors. But the ball squirmed free after a collision in the forecourt and Ed achziger scooped up the loose ball and raced the length of the floor for a game - tying lay - up with but three ticks left on the clock.

Matt Watson, who was very effective under the basket in the final half, scored 14 points for Granada and Steve Robinson added twelve. Darrin Johnson, who began the game on the bench for the first time since the EBAL season began, contributed eleven points to the Wolf cause.

Cal edges Dublin on Lamb's tosses

Daryl Lamb swished a pair of free throws with eight seconds left to give California High a 55-54 win over Dublin in East Bay Athletic League basketball play Friday night.

The win gives the Grizzlies a 3-3 mark in EBAL play, keeping them in a fourth - place tie with Granada for the final playoff spot. Dublin suffered a momentary blow to their playoff chances and dipped to 2-4.

Dublin trailed by 12 points in the first half, but valiantly battled back to ultimately tie the game at 34-34 at the end of the third period.

The Grizzlies jumped back out ahead in the fourth quarter, leading by as many as 53-48 with 31 seconds to go.

Lamb's free throws Cal a 55-52 lead, and a tip - in by Dublin's Jeff Magathen at the buzzer made the score academic.

Brian Green led Cal with 18 points, while Chuck Cary added 11. Joey Raposa scored nine for the Grizzlies and Lamb had seven points, all on free throws.

Marcus Reese topped the Gaels with 17 points, while Magathen scored 14. No other Gael hit in double figures.

Monte Vista still in first

DANVILLE — Monte Vista High School's basketball team upped their East Bay Athletic League record to 5-1 Friday with a rugged 55-47 win over Foothill on their own court.

The Mustangs, tied with Livermore for first place, set up a monumental battle with the Cowboys next Friday on the 'Pokes' court in the final round of the initial round - robin season. They must face Amador Valley the following night.

Foothill dropped to 0-6 with the loss. They play Granada Friday.

Randy Woods and Rich Gray scored all 16 Monte Vista points in the first quarter as the Mustangs roared out to a 16-9 lead.

However, Foothill, behind the shooting of Mitch Pereira and Mike Buckley, outscored the 'Stangs 17-9 in the second quarter enroute to a 26-25 halftime advantage. The two combined for 13 points in the period.

Monte Vista ripped off an 11-6 spurt midway through the fourth quarter after taking back the lead and held a 42-36 advantage going into the Fourth quarter. They maintained that lead for the remainder of the game.

Pereira led the Falcons with 17 points, while Rick Rosenbach enjoyed a good game with 11 points on five field goals and a free throw. Buckley scored 12 points on five shots from the floor and a pair of charity tosses.

Woods tied with Pereira for scoring honors by netting 17 points for Monte Vista, while Ray Bluth scored 12 and Rich Gray 10.

Uncomfortable celebrity

Off the court Barry's family comes first

NOTE: A week ago, the Times ran an article by sports editor Dave Weber detailing in graphic terms a spat Golden State Warrior captain Rick Barry had with the press after a win over New York.

Two days later, correspondent Bob Goll visited Barry at Iis home and learned the other side of Barry's diverse personality.

ALAMO — Rick Barry slumped deep into a leather chair on his family room, looking a great deal more relaxed than he had been in a similar pose on the Warrior bench during a fourth quarter time-out of a recent game.

Pressure had been on his shoulders then. The Warriors had squandered what had been an 18-point lead and faced an embarassing home court loss to the lowly New Orleans Jazz and coach Al Attles had once again sought Barry's patented last minute heroics.

"Sure, I'm aging," Barry admits. "I can't do the things I could do two or three years ago — there are only four or five guys in the league older than me.

Yet, at 33, an advanced age in the world of the NBA's undergraduate hot shots, the 6-7½ forward has already scored 51 points in a single game, averaged six assists and hit 91 per cent of his free throws this season — all wile averaging a withering 37 minutes per game, most of any Warrior.

Those heroics didn't materialize against New Orleans and the Warriors were somewhat humiliated before one of their seven sell-out crowds of the year. But, Rick Barry left his heart ache in Oakland.

"When I go home," he says, "I like to sit back and relax, get off my feet."

Warrior fans might not recognize Barry around his Alamo home. The fiercely competitive, emotional perfectionist in gold and blue is transformed into the typical suburban commuter when he passes through the gates of Round Hill Country Club, where the Barry family makes its home.

"I'm not the type who works around the house," he says. "I'm likely to lie in bed and watch TV.

"There isn't one specific thing I like to do with my spare time. I tend to tire easily of one thing if I do it too much, so I don't really pursue anything too far. My interests are varied."

Barry enjoys golf and has participated in several pro-am tournaments. He also enjoys hunting and fishing, but finds, like most surburban husbands that leisure time is at a premium.

"I don't have enough time to devote to any of these things, to be an expert at them, so I have to settle for being halfway good at each of them.

Rick is also concious of the fact that his NBA schedule and off-season broadcasting career limit the time he can spend with his family. He and his wife, Pam, include their five children in as many of their activities as possible.

"I try to do as much as I can with the kids," he says, "even if I don't feel much like it. Every chance they get, they have me out in the street playing football. I quarterback for both sides."

And sons Jon, Brent and Scooter join Rick at his game by serving as ball boys for Warrior home games.

Not surprisingly, the Barry children already exhibit more than a little athletic ability.

"All the kids are pretty good athletes," Barry said. "I guess between Pam and myself they were bound to pick up some coordination. Jon, who is in the third grade, plays for the fourth grade basketball team. I love to watch the games when I can, but he and Scooter, 11, usually play on the weekends."

Even at fourth grade basketball games, Barry, who wears the mantle of a celebrity uncomfortably, finds himself attracting more attention than the kids on the court can muster.

"I won't sign autographs at things like that," he says flatly. "I go to the game as a parent to see my son play and I don't want to detract from what he's doing. I try to explain that to people, tell them that if tHey see me in a different place, like the market, I'll be glad to sign. But some still don't understand."

Barry believes that people "can't seem to relate to me as just a person. People recognize me in the market and ask me what I'm doing there. I have to eat like everyone else."

Some times even acquaintances are intimidated by his fame.

"I can be moody, so if we're out with people and my moods are ruining the evning, there aren't many people who will say, 'Rick, stop it. You're being a jerk.' I'll say it, no matter who 6I'm with, because I have enough self-confidence."

Barry is grateful for the de-emphasis of sports in Northern California.

"Sports figures just aren't as important here as they are back east. Just in the short time we were back in New York (where Rick played for the ABA Nets), it was tough on Scooter, who was just starting school.

"You can become a god back there. There are certainly benefits to fame, but it also poses problems.

"About a year ago, Scooter and John told an interviewer, without coaching from us, that, 'a lot of fathers have more important jobs than mine,'" Barry recalls. "Pam and I were very proud of that.

"I tell my kids it's no big deal to have Rick Barry for a father. They should just be happy to have a father who loves them."

Barry is unsure how much more of his future will include putting a ball through a hoop, but he is relatively sure about where he is going when he leaves the court.

"I do consider sports casting to be my main source of income in the future," he says. Barry has done commentry for the NBA play-offs and worked as an announcer on other sports for CBS.

"If I had my way, I'd get away from basketball entirely and do the othr sports. But, I know they're going to have Rick Barry doing basketball as long as they have the NBA contract," he said.

"I'd like to take some acting lessons," he said of another possibility. "I've always wanted to be an actor, ever since I was in a couple of high school productions. In a couple of years, I'd like to be spending six to eight months per year on film or TV work."

Barry's current two-year contract with Golden State expires at the end of the season, leaving Rick faced with a decision.

"It depends on what the Warriors say. I don't want to be hanging on for the money. But, as long as I can live up to the standards I set for myself, I'd like to take full advantage of the opportunity to play."

He paused.

"I don't want to regret my decision five or six years from now."

Warriors meet Philly today

PHILADELPHIA — The Golden State Warriors, winners of six of their last eight game, continue their quests to play games in the frozen east and their quest to reach the .500 mark today at the Spectrum at 10:45 a.m. (KNBR-680, radio).

The Greatest Team That Never Was is a big draw, but not a big enough draw for CBS to regionally televise the game back to the Bay Area, though it is an Eastern regional game. Efforts by KPIX, the local CBS affiliate and by independent KTVU, to get the game fed to the area failed.

Meanwhile, the Warriors must go 3-2 on the current five games in eight days road trip to reach the break-even point eather permitting. Golden State had a game snowed out in Cleveland earlier this month.

Amador unbothered by numerous rain delays

After a three-week layoff Amador Valley High School's soccer team wanted to show it hadn't lost any of the poise it had when it won its own holiday tournament so the Dons went on Friday afternoon and rolled over California, 9-0 on the winners' field.

The Dons are now 5-1-1 in East Bay Athletic League action, three points behind league-leading Granada and two behind second-place Dublin. Those two teams were scheduled to play yesterday at Dublin but wet fields postponed the match until February 1.

Amador Valley played practically everybody but the scorekeepers against the 1-8 Grizzlies.

The Dons got the ball rolling right away early in the first half when Kevin Crow belted in a seven-yard shot off a pass from Greg Oxsen with eight minutes gone.

Greg Oxsen added the second goal 25 minutes into the contest and Joe Correia scored two minutes later off an assist from Crow.

Dave Rivier and Marty Espinoza added the final goals of the half.

Pat Cohan opened the second half scoring for the Dons four minutes into the period off a pass from John Castillo.

Castillo got into the scoring act 20 minutes later when he put in a three-yarder directly in front of the Cal net after several previous AV shot attempts had failed.

Roger Edelhuber and Rick Stewart added the final Don goals. It was Stewart's first goal of the season.

With the win Amador Valley has now scored 28 goals and allowed four in EBAL competition.

Don coach Mike Geib felt his team played well, particularly considering the long lay-off.

"We controlled the game at midfield," he said. "We played a lot of people because of the lay-off.

"Our halfbacks, Castillo, Matt Hickman and the rest, were all outstanding. We had some beautiful passing out there."

The Dons have a busy schedule next week. Tuesday they meet Foothill on the latters' field. On Thursday they host Granada in a must-win situation and Friday they play San Ramon at home.

Foothill 4, Monte Vista 0

Foothill High's soccer team remained within two points of first - place Granada with a methodical 4-0 decision over Monte Vista Friday.

Although the Falcons had more than enough energy to spare on offense, it was a superb defensive effort that helped carry them through. Monte Vista couldn't get past the Falcons fullbacks for many shots, getting their first of the day with only ten minutes to go in the first half.

The Falcons, meanwhile, poured in three scores in the first half and added a tally in the second half ti take their sixth win in eight outings.

Dave Laudenbach got the first goal from 15 yards out, taking a pass from Mark Fish. Fish himself scored ten minutes later when a ball booted by Bob Byrd rebounded off the crossbar and back to Fish, who poked it home.

Fish and Laudenbach combined again on a third goal moments later to give the Falcons a 3-0 lead.

Mike Jacobson pocketed the fourth goal in the second half for Foothill, managing a breakaway down the right sideline and pushing the ball past MV goalie Brian McFarlane.

Dublin - Granada

Once again, the Gaels and Mats had to postpone a crucial contest. The game was rescheduled for Feb. 1 at Dublin High. Dublin also hosts San Ramon next Tuesday and Livermore Wednesday in a pair of make - up tilts.

Livermore - San Ramon

The Cowboys and Wolves called their scheduled game because of wet field conditions. No makeup date was available.

Coleman wins Showboat

LAS VEGAS — Bill Coleman, who finished the match play format with a rush, continued his hot bowling in Saturday's nationally televised finals to win a $125,000 Professional Bowlers Association tournament at the Showboat Lanes.

Coleman, of Campbell, Calif., who averaged 251 Friday night, maintained a 247 pace in two games Saturday. He defeated top-seeded Johnny Petraglia of New York 237-191 for his first PBA championship.

The victory was worth $21,000 as well as a berth in the prestigious Firestone Tournament of Champions next April.

Coleman, No. 2 seed in the five-man finals, defeated thirdseeded Pete McCordic of Houston 258-232 to earn the shot at Petraglia, the tournament leader and No. 1 seed in the finals.

Against McCordic, Coleman started with five strikes in a row and added three more later in the game to easily win despite the fact that McCordic finished with four consecutive strikes.

In the championship match, Petraglia never got untracked.

Cowboys press on, top Dons

"They knew we'd press," said Erceg, noting that the Cowboys defensive strategy was no secret.

"We didn't work any harder for this game than we would for any other team," said Erceg. "We were up for it more mentally."

Amador Valley coach Skip Mohatt took the defeat in stride.

"It wasn't only there press that beat us," he said. "It was every part of their game."

"They totally outplayed us everywhere," he added.

And what would the coach of the EBAL's defending champions do if he had to play Livermore again tomorrow?

Looking up, he replied seriously, "Stay home and watch TV.

RISE ON TOES IN YOUR DOUBLE POLE

Today's synthetic bottom skis are much faster than the traditional wood bottom. To take advantage of the added speed on the flats, many skiers have begun to use the double pole much more. But they often have a weak double poling action.

To get more power out of your double pole, rise up on your toes! This helps you get almost all of your body weight over the top of your poles, thus giving you more with which to push down and back on the poles. You may have to practice this technique to gain good balance.

By rising on your toes, you will achieve a more powerful double poling motion and increase your skiing efficiency as well.

'Quakes, Stompers each sign a player

OAKLAND — Mark Liveric, a former member of the San Jose Earthquakes, joined his fourth team in as many seasons when he signed recently with the Oakland Stompers.

Liveric also played for the New York Cosmos and the Washington Diplomats.

Mark enjoyed his best season in 1976 with the Earthquakes when he scored 10 goals and added nine assists in just 20 games. He had an knee injury late in the campaign and didn't approach his 1976 performance when he played for Washington last season.

He scored two goals and only had one assist.

The Stompers are also trying to work a deal with another North American Soccer League team to get into the first round of the league college draft tomorrow and choose All-American Andy Atuegbu of USF. The Stompers currently don't have a choice until the third round.

SAN JOSE — The San Jose Earthquakes have signed Leroy DeLeon to a one-year contract for the 1978 North American Soccer League season.

DeLeon, who scored six goals for the Earthquakes in 1977, is ranked fifth on the all-time NASL scoring list.

The 29-year old DeLeon is the third player under contract for San Jose as Paul Child and John Rowlands are already inked for 1978.

Coach Gabbo Gavric feels DeLeon could have an even better season in 1978.

"Lee should score even more goals this year," he said. "especially if we can get some help for him and Paul Child on the forward line. We need another wing — someone who can take the ball past an opponent and center it to Paul or Leroy. Last year it was a weak spot for us.

Gavric will have two opportunities to look into the right wing situation during the next two weeks.

Refs the Rose Bowl

Bryan reaches pinnacle

Ever wonder what it feels like to shake hands with a President? To be in a parade in front of 125 million people? Or to have 105,000 critical fans and millions of others peering at you on a crucial call that decides the fate of the Rose Bowl?

Well, DVC's Gay Bryan managed to do all that and more, Jan. 2, this year, when he rose to the top of college officiating as line judge for the 1978 Rose Bowl classic in Pasadena.

Bryan, a veteran coach and instructor for DVC, has been working games as an official for more than 25 years. He has risen from Pop Warner, high school, college and now to the Rose Bowl. Bryan is the first area football official so honored, although another, Pete Kramer, had been asked but declined in the early '50s.

Tall and rangy, Bryan gives the impression of honesty and fairness. He must, because when it came time to make two critical decisions in the closing moments of the game, no one questioned his ruling.

"The calls had a definite effect on the outcome," Bryan said, afterward. "I didn't hesitate and later, the instant replay camera proved them correct.

"Working the Rose Bowl was a thrilling experience," he continued. "The game itself was actually very easy because of the high caliber of competition. The conduct of the players and coaches was outstanding."

He claims the pressure of millions of people watching on television didn't bother him. "Once it started, it seemed like another football game from my standpoint.

"Before the game though, they escorted all the officials to the press box in front of the parade, right where they have cameras. The TV people told us there were 125 million people watching the parade. That was thrilling," he admitted.

From the parade, the officials were taxied to a club house next to the stadium. Three officials from the Pac-8 and three from the Big 10 were involved and they lunched with members of the Tournament of Roses Committee.

"After lunch, we walked to the stadium to dress. In the locker room we had a two - hour pre - game conference just between the officials," Bryan said.

Then it was down to the stadium floor with all the pageantry and excitement of the Rose Bowl game between the Pac-8 champion, Washington and Michigan, the winner of the Big 10. Because of Michigan, Bryan had the chance to shake hands with ex-President Gerald Ford.

"He was the Grand Marshall of the Parade," Bryan explained. "And an alumini of Michigan, where he used to play center for the Wolverines."

Bryan's position as line judge placed him on the Michigan side of the field and he was standing there when President Ford's open, white limo drove up. He was introduced to the stadium crowd and the TV cameras and then was to pass the ball out to begin the game.

Ford was standing next to Gay and the back judge. "Before he threw the ball", Bryan remembered, "He said, 'They tell me I'm suppose to throw the ball but I'm a little out of practice. Maybe I should center it — but I'm a little out of practice at that too."

But Ford managed, Bryan reported; "Then he turned and shook hands and wished us luck for a good game."

Bryan feels shaking hands with ex - President Ford was part of the experience that made the Rose Bowl the height of his officiating career. "Working the Rose Bowl is the epitome of collegiate football officiating," he said and modestly added, "I was lucky to be a part of it."

Going to the Rose Bowl was a family affair for the Bryans. His wife and five of their six children all went down for the game. "By the time we paid for hotel rooms, food and other expenses, working the game cost me money," he chuckled. "But officiating is still a hobby with me and the friendships and experience was worth it."

Gay did bring back and wears proudly a fine watch presented to the officials as a memento. The watch is now a reminder about the afternoon when he stood in front of 125 million people at a parade, shook hands with an ex - President and made two crucial calls that effected the outcome of Rose Bowl 1978.

By the way, Washington won 27-29.

Article I
Purpose and Definitions

Section 2-17.01. Purpose and Intent. The City of Pleasanton lies largely in a valley in which substantial portions were and are covered by native or indigenous trees. The City recognizes that preservation of such trees enhances the natural scenic beauty, sustains the long term potential increase in property values which encourages quality development, maintains the ecology, moderates the effect of extreme temperatures, prevents erosion of topsoil, helps create an identity and quality in the City which enhances the attractiveness of the City to visitors and increases the oxygen output of the area which is needed to combat air pollution. For these reasons the Council finds that in order to promote the public health, safety and general welfare of the City of Pleasanton while at the same time recognizing individual rights to develop private property in a manner which will not be prejudicial to the public interest it is necessary to enact regulations controlling the removal and preservation of "heritage" trees within the City of Pleasanton. However, the Council also recognizes that under certain circumstances "heritage" trees may properly be removed. Those circumstances include where "heritage" trees are dangerous; dead or diseased; so situated on undeveloped land that their preservation would preclude feasible development; or so abundant their removal would not destroy the area's natural beauty or ecology or cause erosion. It is the intent of this ordinance to preserve as many "heritage" trees as possible on land about to be developed, through the development review process.

Section 2-17.02. Definitions. For the purpose of this chapter, certain words and terms used herein are defined as follows:

a. "Heritage Tree" shall mean any of the following:

1. Any tree with a circumference of fifty-five (55) inches or more measured two and one-half feet above ground level.

2. Any tree thirty-five feet or more in height.

3. Any tree of particular historical significance specifically designated by official action.

4. A stand of trees the nature of which makes each dependent upon the others for survival.

b. "Director" shall mean the Director of Public Works or his designated representative.

Section 2-17.03. Exceptions. The provisions of this Chapter shall not apply to fruit trees or, when part of an orchard, to nut bearing trees the product of which is used for commercial purposes.

Article 2
Permit Procedure

Section 2-17.04. Permit Required. No person shall cut down, destroy or remove any heritage tree growing within the City limits from any property without a permit except as provided herein.

Section 2-17.05. Permit Procedures. Except as provided in Section 2-17.08, any person desiring to cut down, destroy or remove one or more heritage trees on any property in the City of Pleasanton shall make application to the Director. Said application shall contain the number, species, size and location of trees to be cut down, destroyed or removed and a brief statement of the reason for removal as well as any other pertinent information he may require. The permit, if granted, shall entitle the applicant to remove only those trees designated by permit. Prior to the issuance of such permit, the Director shall visit and inspect the property, the tree or trees in question, and the surrounding area and shall ascertain the following:

a. The condition of the tree with respect to disease, general health, damage, public nuisance, danger of falling, proximity to existing or proposed structures, interference with utility service and whether or not the tree acts as host for a plant which is parasitic to another species of tree which is in danger of being exterminated by the parasite.

b. The necessity to remove the tree in order to construct any proposed improvements to allow economic enjoyment of the property.

c. The number of existing trees in the neighborhood or area on improved property and the effect removal would have upon the public health, safety, general welfare or residents and upon the property and beauty of the area.

d. The topography of the land upon which the tree or trees are situated and the effect of removal thereof upon erosion, soil retention, and diversion or flow of surface waters.

e. Good forestry practices, i.e. the number of healthy trees that a given parcel of land will support.

The Director may refer any application to any City department or commission for a report and recommendation.

Section 2-17.06. Action by Director, Findings. The Director shall issue a permit to remove a tree or trees if it is determined that one of the following conditions exist:

a. The tree is in such a dangerous or hazardous condition as to threaten or endanger the safety or people, structures, other property, or other heritage trees.

b. The tree is dead, dying or diseased and good forestry practices cannot be reasonably undertaken to preserve the tree; or

c. Where the tree in question is not diseased or hazardous, the removal of tree is consistent with the purposes and intent of this chapter and in keeping with the health, safety and general welfare of the community.

The Director shall notify the applicant in writing of the determination giving the reason for the application's approval or denial.

Section 2-17.07. Appeal. Any decision made by the Director to deny tree removal may be appealed by written application by any affected resident or property owner in the City of Pleasanton to the City Council. Such appeal must be submitted in writing to the City Clerk within twenty (20) days of the decision being appealed and shall briefly state facts and the grounds of the appeal and be signed by the appellant. Upon receipt of said appeal the City Clerk shall set a date for hearing before the City Council. The Director shall submit a report to the Council setting forth the factual determinations required by Section 2-17.05, along with any departmental recommendations. The Council may conduct a public hearing on the appeal, however, compliance with Section 2-5.08 (Public Hearing and Notice) is not required. Following the hearing of any such appeal the City Council may affirm, reverse, or modify the action of the Director and may take any action thereon which would have been authorized in the first instance. The action of the City Council on any such appeal shall be final and conclusive.

Section 2-17.08. New Property Development. Any person desiring to cut down, destroy, or remove one or more trees on any property in the City which is related to the development of property requiring design review shall make application to the Design Review Board for such removal as a part of the regular design review application.

The applicant shall provide a tree survey plan specifying the precise location, size, and species of all existing trees on the property with a special notation of those classified as Heritage Trees. The survey shall also indicate which trees are proposed for removal.

This tree survey plan shall be forwarded to the Director who shall, after making a field visit to the property, indicate in writing which trees are recommended for preservation using the same standards set forth in Section 2-17.05. This report shall be made part of the staff report to the Design Review Board upon its consideration of the application for new property development.

The Design Review Board through its site and landscaping plan review shall endeavor to preserve all trees recommended for preservation by the Director. The Design Review Board may determine that any of the trees recommended for preservation should be removed, if there is evidence submitted to it, that due to special site grading or other unusual characteristics associated with the property the preservation of the tree (s) would significantly preclude feasible development of the property.

Approval of final site and landscape plans by the Design Review Board indicating which trees are to be removed shall constitute the tree permit for the purpose of this chapter. An appeal from the decision of the Design Review Board may be made in the manner provided for in Section 2-10.11 (Appeal to City Council).

Section 2-17.09. Emergency. In case of emergency caused by the tree being in a hazardous or dangerous condition requiring immediate action for the safety of structures or human life such tree may be removed by permission of the Director.

Article 3
Preservation and Maintenance of Existing Heritage Trees

Section 2-17.10. Protection of Existing Heritage Trees. All contractors, developers and owners of property with existing heritage trees shall comply with the following regulations.

a. When proposed developments encroach into the drip line area of any heritage tree, special construction to allow the roots to breathe and obtain moisture shall be required as determined by the Director.

b. The existing ground surface without four (4) feet (measured horizontally) of the base of any heritage tree shall not be cut, filled or compacted. Tree wells may be used where advisable. Excavation adjacent to any such tree shall not be permitted where damage to the root system will result.

c. No oil, gas, chemical, heavy construction machines or other construction materials shall be stored within ten (10) feet of any heritage tree.

d. No wires, unless those needed for support of the tree, or signs other than small tree identification signs shall be attached to any heritage tree.

e. The Director shall be notified by the contractor or developer or owner of any damage that occurs to a tree during construction so that proper treatment may be administered by the contractor.

Section 2-17.11. Pruning and Maintenance. All pruning of heritage trees shall comply with guidelines established by the Director.

Section 2-17.12. Other Tree Provisions. The provisions of this article shall supplement but not supplant other provisions of this code relating to the preservation of trees.

Section 2. This Ordinance shall become effective 30 days after it has been duly adopted.

Section 3. This Ordinance shall be published once within fifteen (15) days after its adoption in "The Times," a newspaper of general circulation published and circulated in the City of Pleasanton.

Seabridge townhomes by Broadmoor start at $94,450.

S.F. airport proximity a plus for Seabridge

The proximity of San Francisco and its international airport appears to be the major reason homebuyers are purchasing at Seabridge located at Redwood Shores, according to Fran Edwards, salesperson for the new Broadmoor Homes development.

"The predominance of our buyers are professionals, most of whom are coming from adjacent peninsula communities and many of whom travel a great deal. These people want easy access to the airport and city facilities and amenities.

"In addition, the quality homes have a strong water-recreation emphasis and waterfront views, which makes living at Seabridge all the more desirable," Ms. Edwards continued.

Seabridge is one of the more recent communities planned for Redwood Shores, the 1,400-acre multi-community development by Mobile Oil Estates that will eventually provide the mid-peninsula area with 6,000 new homes.

The $10 million community of 97 townhomes offers three basic plans with 1,583 to 1,965 square feet. Prices are from $94,450 to $108,450.

Rustic wood highlight both the exteriors and interiors of the two-story, two and three bedroom homes. Wood-burning fireplaces with custom masonry detailing grace living rooms.

Expanses of glass, soaring beamed ceilings, skylights and outdoor-view balconies and patios enhance the design of the homes.

Other features include sunken living rooms, separate dining rooms and enclosed two-car garages with automatic door openers.

The largest of the Seabridge homes has a library with its own fireplace. Others have kitches with greenhouse windows and master suites with balconies overlooking the water.

Standard appointments in each home include General Electric built-ins, ceramic tile counter tops, hardwood cabinets, luminous ceilings and convenient breakfast nooks or eating bars.

Indoor utility rooms, tiled entries, wrought iron entry gates with overhead trellises, privacy screening and fully enclosed storage at rear patios are additional assets, Ms. Edwards said.

In addition to the luxury homes and the pleasures of waterfront living, residents of Seabridge also enjoy such private recreational facilities as a tennis court, heated pool and hydro-spa, situated just steps away from home.

All residents automatically become members of the Seabridge Homeowners Association which maintains common area landscaping and home exteriors.

To visit Seabridge, take the Bayshore Freeway to the Ralston Avenue/Marine World Parkway East exit, then follow the signs to the Seabridge sales office at Redwood Shores.

Now you've got a second chance.

It's radio-controlled cool

"Smart thermostats" controlled by radio receivers will have their day in the sun this summer.

They'll be used by Pacific Gas and Electric Company in a large-scale test to reduce the consumption of electricity by non-residential air conditioners during periods of peak power demand.

Specifically, PG&E plans to adjust temperatures in the establishment of 500 commerical and small industrial customers under a new concept.

Using radio signals, the utility will be able to allow indoor temperatures to rise on hot summer afternoons by a few degrees per hour — up to an agreed-upon maximum. This use of the "smart thermostat" will draw on the existing coolness in the selected buildings to allow air conditioning equipment to "coast," or operate at reduced capacity for short periods. Thus electric demand will be eased during peak hours.

The 500 customers will be selected among volunteers in Fresno, San Jose and Stockton, areas which have heavy air conditioning use during summer months. PG&E is mailing letters and questionnaires to commercial and and small tral industrial users in the three cities.

The first test of its kind to be conducted in the Unite States, the experiment is planned as a further further step to help avoid power shortages or service interruptions S. Cooper , PG&E manager of energy conservation and servidces.

The letters to customers will say : "The experiment will be voluntary but to design and plan it we must know what sizes and types of air conditioners your business has, (2) if you wish to volunteer to participate . . . or (3) if you choose not to . . .$

"The goal of the experiment is to see if we can reduce air conditoning electrical usage by small but important amounts during certain summer afternoons and to measure what effect, if any, that reduction has on the comfort of customers and employees"

PG&E plans to install the control equipment and magnetic tape metering devices to measure results at no expense to thsoe who volunteer for the test. The selected customers during the experimental period will be offered based on the size of their air conditioners .

Various types of businesses and small palnts, including moderate size retail stores and restaurants and office complexes, will be chosen from volunteers who answer the letters. The PG&E letters will be mailed to 22,000 customers.

PG&E plans to begin the test at the start of summer and continue it through September.

The utility also plans to continue a test program , started last year in which central air conditioners of selected residential customers are turned off by remote control for brief periods of time in the summer. This turnoff experiment has involved a total of 400 customers in Fresno, Concord, Walnut Creek and Pleasant Hill.

"We know that conservation by itself will not solve our energy problem," Cooper says. "We still will need new power plants to supply our growing service area and our efforts to build them are becoming increasingly difficult.

Susanne Oster of PG&E demonstrates the radio gear and other equipment used in "smart thermostats."

determine everything that can be achieved through through conservation measures as we attempt to meet the power needs of our customers — both now and in the future."

Name change was needed

The Concord Convention and Visitors Bureau, a very strong and valuable arm of this city's Chamber of Commerce, has been instrumental during recent years in attracting newcomers to Contra Costa County's largest municipality.

The Bureau, headed by Clara Hook, is in the process of publishing a "Concord Tourist Guide" to notify both newcomers and residents of recreational opportunities available locally.

The Guide will be a needed replacement for "Funtime in Concord," published five years ago by the Bureau for Chamber members.

With the expected exception of information that understandably has become outdated over half a decade, that pamphlet still serves as a good summary of leisure life in Concord.

Settlement made in big realtor fraud case

Los Angeles — Displaying a $25,000 cashier's check in an initial payment, California Department of Real Estate (DRE) Director David H. Fox announced a settlement which guarantees full restitution of all missing monies in the alleged largest real estate trust fund fraud in recent history.

Fox emphasized that the full cooperation of Realty World Corporation, a nation-wide real estate franchising firm, was instrumental in the swift settlement of the case involving an estimated $400,000 in trust account shortages and 21 Southern California real estate businesses.

Under the terms of the settlement Fox stated that "Red Giant, Inc. and its principals have agreed to replace any missing funds thus insuring consumers will be fully protected and receive all escrow monies due them in every real estate transaction currently under way." Realty World Corporation has guaranteed that the funds will be fully restored.

The $25,000 was deposited with the DRE today, and the balance of the necessary funds will be provided in the near future.

Fox cited the settlement as a "model for fair-minded real estate businesses throughout California" and praised the cooperative attitude and actions of Realty World Corporation stating that to his knowledge "all Realty World affiliated offices are acting lawfully and are dealing with the public in a fully responsible manner."

Realty World Corporation has also guaranteed the DRE full access to all relevant business records, and pledged complete cooperation in the department's ongoing investigation into possible license law violations. According to Fox, "the DRE will continue to seek to revoke or suspend the licenses of all involved brokers or salespersons who acted wrongfully."

Triggered by the settlement, the DRE is dismissing the court action filed last week against Red Giant, Inc., Giant South Corporations, and other defendants in this case.

Mortgage debts at new high

As the American economy enters 1978, a milestone has been reached. Outstanding mortgage debt in the United States crossed the trillion dollar mark. That doubles the 1971 figure. Sixty-four percent of these dollars are providing single-family housing for American families. The other thirty-six percent supports a variety of activities in the American economy, including office buildings, shopping centers, farm and multifamily properties.

This trillon dollar milestone is a direct result of record mortgage lending activity of the past two years. The momentum of this activity assures that 1978 will also be an outstanding year for mortgage lending. This is a great improvement over the real estate depression that characterized 1973, 1974 and 1975.

While the memory of these recent depression years still cause some apprehension, there is no gloom and doom for the year ahead. Sales of existing homes are expected to set another record. Sales of new housing are also at high levels. The prices of new and existing homes are keeping pace with inflation in building materials, and have done so for over a decade. This provides incentives to both builders and buyers to maintain housing activity. Incomes have risen even faster, maintaining the buyer's ability to upgrade their housing. And record numbers of consumers are continuing to declare their intention to buy houses in 1978.

As a result, housing starts, particularly single-family housing, will make further gains during 1978. This supports an optimistic housing forecast of 2.1 million starts. Of that total, 1.6 million are single-family units. Multifamily units will go slightly above 0.5 million. When an anticipated 300,000 mobile home units are added, you get the prediction that American total shelter production will be 2.4 million units.

Rising economic activity has also brought revival of warehouse and other light industrial building, but the impending explosion of new plant construction will come in 1979 rather than in 1978.

There are four cyclical factors that will sustain single-family housing production: increasing household formations; greater migration; rising consumer confidence' and the continuing benefit of housing upgrading. These four cyclical factors will be stronger in 1978 than they were in 1977. All four are on the rise.

To this must be added the strong desire for the single-family house. What's behind this trend? In the middle of 1970's, we entered a single-family housing boom that has continued through the present and is expected to go on through the decade of the 1980's.
